JAPANESE REPORT CHINA CRISIS BEING SETTLED

Fugitive Slain By Ontario Police In Gun Fight Today

V. Szymonski, Wanted For Killing Sudbury Constable, Shot on Railway Track

T. Shoke, Wounded, Is Believed Dying

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP)—Victor Szymonski, wanted for the slaying of Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury police force, was shot and killed by police in a running gun battle that ended in a Canadian Pacific Railway rock cut three miles west of Nairn Centre early today. Tom Shoke, also sought in connection with the murder of Davidson, was wounded and taken into custody.

Challenged by police as they headed into the foggy muck of the rock cut just as dawn broke, the fugitives opened fire with shotguns. Buttressed behind jutting rocks, four officers shot down the 54-year-old gunman, who shrieked as he dropped.

Shoke, pulling an automatic pistol from his pocket, stood on the railway tracks and attempted to put up a battle. He fired back over his shoulder as he ran.

A heavy haversack protected his head and bullets that went through it failed to bring him down. Finally he fell from a shot between the shoulder blades.

Rushed to Espanola, 40 miles west of Sudbury, Shoke was believed dying as doctors attended him. If he survives he will face a murder charge, sworn out Tuesday after Sgt. Davidson had died of wounds received nine days before from a gun allegedly wielded by Szymonski.

AUTO INVESTIGATION
Sgt. Davidson died in a hospital here Tuesday, nine days after he had come on two men apparently changing license plates on an automobile on Riverside Drive and was fired on as he tried to apprehend them. On his deathbed he swore a man identified as Szymonski shot him.

No Charge As Police Hold Boy

Inquest Verdict S. L. Metcalf Was Shot Near Port Coquitlam

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 16-year-old boy who was blamed Wednesday afternoon by a New Westminster coroner's jury for the death of his father, Samuel Lamont Metcalf, July 20, remained in the juvenile detention home here today, with no charge laid against him.

Police were awaiting word from Attorney-General Gordon Wismer before taking action against the lad, who told police who investigated the shooting that he shot his father to protect him from possible injury by the enraged man.

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—In a verdict Wednesday afternoon a coroner's jury found that a single bullet "from a 22 calibre rifle in the hands of his son" killed Samuel Lamont Metcalf, 54, on his Port Coquitlam stump-ranch farm Tuesday morning. Metcalf was found lying dead near the isolated log cabin where he lived with his wife, 16-year-old son and 15-year-old daughter, Shirley, when British Columbia police arrived at the scene of the shooting Tuesday.

In evidence at the inquest Wednesday, Mrs. Edith Metcalf, the mother, said her husband's death ended two weeks of almost constant quarrels with him because

Veto Over-riden By U.S. Houses Measure Extending Farm Loan Emergency Interest Rates Voted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Senate enacted over President Roosevelt's veto today a measure to extend "emergency" rates on farm loans.

It voted to over-ride the veto 71 to 19, more than the two-thirds majority required. The House previously had over-riden Mr. Roosevelt's veto 260 to 98.

The new law extends for one year the 3½ per cent rate on approximately $2,000,000,000 of federal land bank bonds, and provides for a 4 per cent rate the following fiscal year.

It also reduces from 5 to 4 per cent for two years the interest on about $800,000,000 of land bank commissioner loans, secured largely by second mortgages.

MADRID BATTLE IS STILL RAGING

Franco Troops Attack Neck of Loyalist Salient West of the City

MADRID (AP)—Gen. Franco's forces fought today for a stranglehold at the neck of the government's salient into insurgent siege lines west of Madrid.

At the same time they drove at the middle of the government spearhead salient east of Villanueva de la Canada.

In that sector, some 15 miles west of the city, Franco's men held dominant positions on "Peak No. 660," which they swept clean of government troops for a third time Wednesday.

HALIFAX (CP)—A six-inch gun, weighing 40,000 pounds, removed from Citadel Hill, will be sent to the western naval base at Esquimalt, B.C., it was learned today. The gun has been in Halifax for the last 30 years.

Exam Results Are Announced

More Than 500 Students Who Wrote Entrance Tests Were Successful

Of 1,204 pupils of British Columbia elementary schools who wrote entrance examinations for admittance to high school, 547 were successful, it was announced with the release of the examination results today.

Throughout the province there were 6,327 pupils who were recommended from grade 8 without the necessity of writing exams.

In reviewing the number of successful candidates in examinations, Department of Education authorities said that while less than 50 per cent were successful, this was a fairly high average.

In alphabetical order, following the Victoria list, the successful candidates on Vancouver Island are given below. Pupils who wrote examinations and wish to secure their marks may do so at a later date from their teachers. In keeping with the department's new policy there were no honor rolls or medals issued in public schools this year.

New Compromise Plan For Spain

Reported in London Proposals Before Nations' Sub-committee

LONDON (CP-Havas)—It was reported in reliable quarters tonight that a completely new compromise formula for solution of the Spanish non-intervention stalemate will be submitted to the chairman's sub-committee at its next session.

While the exact nature of the new recommendations could not be learned, it was understood they would embrace none of the suggestions reported to have been advanced since the sub-committee adjourned Tuesday after failing to make any appreciable progress toward acceptance of the British compromise plan.

Larger Supreme Court Proposal Shelved In U.S.

Senate Virtually Kills Roosevelt Plan For This Congressional Session

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Senate virtually killed President Roosevelt's Supreme Court enlargement proposal today for this congressional session.

It voted to send the administration court bill back to its judiciary committee.

The vote for returning the measure was 70 to 20.

The committee was instructed to prepare a new measure affecting the lower court only and report it to the Senate within 10 days. The new measure, based on an eight-point programme worked out in committee this morning, would not affect the Supreme Court in any way.

Senator Logan, Democrat, Kentucky, made the motion to return the bill to committee. He acted on instructions from the judiciary committee. With the plan of ending the court dispute both administration chiefs and leaders of the court bill opposition were reported to be in substantial agreement.

OPPOSITION IN CONTROL
The committee, with the opposition in complete control, had turned down an administration proposal that the Roosevelt bill be laid aside temporarily while an alternative measure was drafted.

It decided instead to ask the Senate to send the pending bill back to it. There were only two or three dissenting votes.

The action was taken, committee members said, after Vice-president Garner had pleaded with tears in his eyes for settlement of the bitter dispute which threatened to split the Democratic Party wide open.

There was some disagreement among committee members as to whether the administration spokesmen present had agreed to the bill they had, others that they had not.

Nanking Government Is Said to Recognize Local Terms For Peiping Area

MAYOR SILENT ON DEBT PLAN

In Vancouver Today, McGavin Says Nothing Will Be Known Before Monday

VANCOUVER—The "minor reservations" with which holders of City of Victoria bonds accepted the Jules E. Fortin debt adjustment plan remained unknown today.

Mayor Andrew McGavin of Victoria arriving here from Toronto, with C. S. Henley, Victoria's fiscal agent, would not make a statement on the bondholders' action.

It was learned in Victoria, July 20, that special committees representing Canadian, United States and English holders of $14,588,561 in City of Victoria bonds, had decided in Toronto to accept the much-discussed Fortin plan.

Previously the Provincial Government said it would approve the plan if 51 per cent of the bondholders approved it.

Mayor McGavin said the reservations with which the bondholders qualified their decision would not be known until after a meeting of Victoria City Council Monday. The Mayor expected to spend today in Vancouver and to proceed to Victoria tomorrow.

Fumes Overcome Twelve Firemen

QUEBEC (CP)—Ammonia and chemical fumes from a small fire in a perfumery shop here today overcame 12 firemen, first to enter the establishment, who had to be revived by pulmotor treatment.

Thought to have broken out from an explosion in the basement of the two-story St. Valier Street building in the lower town, the fire caused little damage and was extinguished quickly by firemen.

Senators Score Chicago Police

U.S. Civil Liberties Committee Reports on Memorial Day Shooting of Ten

WASHINGTON (AP)—The LaFollette civil liberties committee said today Chicago police used "excessive force" and showed "the most careless indifference to human life and suffering" in breaking up a Memorial Day demonstration of steel strike sympathizers.

The report, filed with the United States Senate by Chairman R. M. LaFollette (Progressive, Wisconsin), followed a committee investigation of the encounter near the gates of the Republic Steel plant, in which 10 demonstrators were killed and scores injured on last May 30.

A coroner's jury, sitting in Chicago, returned verdicts last Tuesday holding the deaths to be "justifiable homicide."

The senate committee found that "the police attack came without warning," after "the first shots . . . came from a police revolver."

The report said speakers at a strike mass meeting, just before the clash, asserted that nothing had occurred "which could be even remotely construed as an incitement to assault the police or to capture the plant."

LITTLE PROVOCATION
"We find that the provocation for the police assault did not go beyond abusive language, and the throwing of isolated missiles from the rear ranks of the marchers," the committee asserted.

Japanese State Agreement for Withdrawal of Troops of Both Sides From Disputed Territory Removes Much of Tension Which Predictions Said Might Lead to War in China

Japan Leader

TOKIO (AP)—The central Chinese government, Japanese dispatches from Peiping Thursday said, has agreed to recognize settlement of the north China crisis by local officials.

Officials said the agreement would remove much of the tension which both Japanese and Chinese had predicted might lead to war.

Gen. Sung Chieh-yuan, commander of the 29th Chinese Army and chairman of the Hopeh-Chahar Political Council, agreed Wednesday to a truce.

It provided both sides should withdraw troops from the area west of Peiping, where fighting broke out July 7.

Nanking insisted, however, it would recognize no locally drafted pact, contending issues were national and charging the Japanese sought to detach the provinces of Hopeh and Chahar from China proper.

Thursday, however, Japanese said, Nanking informed Gen. Sung his settlement was satisfactory. The Chinese troops already have begun withdrawing.

JAPANESE WITHDRAWAL

Japanese troops were expected to withdraw as soon as the Chinese forces had completed evacuation.

It was said further that Nanking had agreed to direct diplomatic negotiations with Japan, which might lead to adjudication of national differences.

These include demands for recognition of Japan's political and economic rights in north China.

SHIPMENTS STOPPED

The Japanese War Office was reliably reported Thursday to have issued orders indefinitely suspending the delivery of huge orders of war supplies and halting the shipment of such equipment to north China.

Although the meaning of this move in the Sino-Japanese situation was not immediately apparent, some observers interpreted it as an indication of peace rather than a war.

The order suspending the delivery of war necessities was understood to have been issued about mid-afternoon Thursday, and immediately was put into effect by the firms which have been turning out quantities of supplies for the Japanese army in north China.

A Domei (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Nanking declared the Japanese charge d'affaires there, Shinroku Hidaka, had sent an important

Arms Vote Is Not Opposed

LONDON (CP)—Labor decided today not to vote against the fighting service estimates when they are before the House of Commons next week. A decision was reached after a two-hour private meeting of the Parliamentary Labor party.

ALASKA QUAKE DOES DAMAGE

Windows Broken at Fairbanks; Shocks at Hot Springs and Tanana

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP)—The Weather Bureau reported "much damage" done at Fairbanks by an earthquake which shook interior Alaska between 7 and 8 a.m. today.

The shock also was reported at Hot Springs and Tanana.

The damage was mostly to windows and merchandise in stores, the weather bureau was informed.

At 1:35 p.m. (2:35 p.m. P.S.T.) the shocks were reported continuing.

The sharp tremors were believed to be the same ones registered on seismological instruments throughout the United States and at Victoria, B. C.

FOR ROUMANIAN PILOT'S FLIGHT

EDMONTON (CP)—Communication today from a Vancouver oil firm branch (Shell Oil Company) said the 600 gallons of highest gasoline from San Francisco and New York, and 45 gallons of oil from Germany, sent here for a round-the-world flier, are for Prince Constantin Cantacuzino, Roumanian aviator.

Edmonton aviation officials wondered if a mystery airplane reported eastbound over the Atlantic might be Cantacuzino's.

Effort to Trace Atlantic Plane

No Word From Machine Reported Seen East of Newfoundland Wednesday

NEW YORK (AP)—The mystery of a plane reported flying across the Atlantic to Europe became deeper and darker today as U.S. and Canadian radio men stood by for further word.

A message, picked up by the Radio Marine Corporation's station at Chatham, Mass., said the plane had been seen and heard 500 miles east of Cape Race, Newfoundland, at 8:04, Eastern standard time, Wednesday night.

Chatham picked up the message from the U.S. freighter Scanmail, which relayed it from another ship it identified as the British freighter Rancee, whose call letters are GSPV. But the Rancee, it was learned, is in the West Indies, and the radio men at Chatham now believe the Scanmail made a mistake in receiving the call letters.

A check of leading Canadian and United States airports failed to disclose immediately any definite information about such a flight.

LIGHTS SEEN BY CREW

The message said the crew heard the roar of the motors, looked up and saw the plane's running lights. It was certain only that, if the plane were bound for Europe, 1,500 miles of water lay ahead.

Leading fliers known to be planning trans-ocean flights in the near future, including Dick Merrill, Jimmy Mattern and Howard Hughes, all were located aground.

SHOT FUGITIVE MAY SURVIVE

Pete Traxler, Wounded By Hostages, Faces Return to Texas Jail

HUGO, Okla.—Return to a Texas prison farm loomed today for Roy "Pete" Traxler as the slippery southwest gunman continued to withstand the effects of a bullet wound over the heart.

His companion in a 12-day flight lay in a morgue, a victim of the desperadoes' own guns. The companion, Fred Tindol, was slain yesterday and Traxler was shot by two hostages the outlaws had kidnapped in their flight from almost 1,000 officers in southern Oklahoma.

Frank Trimmer, 50, a farmer, and J. E. Denton, 44, oilfield worker, snatched guns from the men's sides when the exhausted fugitives dozed in a car near Boswell, Okla.

"I tried to tell the guy he didn't need to shoot me because I was all through," Traxler said, "but I just wasted my breath. He didn't wait for me to say anything. He just shot. I fell out of the car to keep him from killing me."

Trimmer and Denton both fired at Tindol, then Denton turned his gun on Traxler.

down, then fired bullets into him as he lay on the ground.

An imprint of a rubber sole found at the scene of the shooting led to the capture. The tracks of the rubber shoes were found near Creighton Mine this week, heading in a westerly direction, and the following day about 10 miles on.

Inspector Knight posted men along the right-of-way near Nairn, about 45 miles west of Sudbury, while others covered the bridge over the Spanish River on the highway. Captured today, Shoke was wearing the rubber-soled shoes.

CALED ON TO STOP

On guard in the rock cut at 4 this morning, Sergeant Arthur Page of the provincial police and Constables Stan Wilson of Sudbury, E. Turpin of Sudbury and Jack Brown of Blind River saw two men creep out of the woods beside the track and start west.

They were talking in Polish and one of the officers challenged. "Stop—it's the police!" yelled one of the pair.

Szymonski ran toward the rock cut, shooting as he came. The officers returned the fire and the gunman fell. Shoke pulled a pistol and fired nine shots before he went down.

One of the officers was hit as they terminated the nine-day manhunt.

Shoke had Sgt. Davidson's revolver in his possession, police said. The two had picked it up as Davidson lay mortally wounded. In the haversacks they carried, Szymonski and Shoke had supplies of food and cooking equipment, police stated.

PRISON TERMS
Szymonski and Shoke were possessors of many aliases and had been sentenced to prison under several of them.

Szymonski, known even more commonly as Victor Gray, had been sentenced to 10-year penitentiary terms three times. A native of Poland, he was sentenced to 10 years for robbery with violence in 1910, but escaped the same year, to remain at liberty until 1914, when Constable William Clark of Copper Cliff, now North Bay police chief, captured him single-handed.

At the time of his death Szymonski was wanted by Toronto police as Victor Gray on a charge of allegedly stabbing a countryman.

Among convictions against Shoke, who has called himself Pormarenko and Ponsmar, have been two carrying sentences of five years and one of three years on a charge of shooting—with intent. Caught breaking into a coal company office at St. Catharines, Ont., he fired at Constable Thomas Williams. For that offence he was charged as Harry Silcox, Alias Scott, Alias Salamander.

BELIEVED DYING

ESPLANOLA, Ont. (CP)—Tom Shoke, Alias Pormarenko, wounded in a gunfight today in which Victor Szymonski was killed by police, is unconscious and believed dying in a hospital here.

Crown authorities have had no chance to question him regarding the slaying of Sergeant Fred Davidson of the Sudbury police, for whose murder he and Szymonski were sought.

MEXICO CITY—Eleven workmen were killed and 21 injured Wednesday, dispatches from Mexico, Lower California, said, when a locomotive smashed into an overturned work car on the Orino, Sonora, railway now under construction.

SOCIAL CREDIT NOTE TO BANKS

EDMONTON (CP)—Charging that "those who govern money are moved by considerations almost entirely alien to the needs and wants of the people of this province," a letter from the Alberta government was received today by chartered banks in the province. The letter carried the stamped signature of Provincial Treasurer Solon Low.

Declaring "that for every dollar owned by the people of this province only approximately 20 cents with which to pay it is at present available to them," the circular added "the disparity disclosed above must be quickly adjusted, as also must all other similar disparities."

Premier Aberhart announced Wednesday night the government would ask banks for voluntary co-operation in steps designed to establish a Social Credit system. He said the request was being made "as a preliminary measure in preparation for the session of the Legislature" scheduled to open August 3.

NO CHARGE AS POLICE HOLD BOY

she had learned two weeks ago he had "criminally assaulted his own daughter."

She told her story despite advice from her son's counsel, Milton Gonzales of Vancouver.

At one point in the hearing Coroner D. M. Lineham, after Gonzales had jumped to his feet six times to advise Mrs. Metcalf not to give evidence, told the lawyer:

"One more objection from you and I'll order one of these men (pointing to provincial officers) to take you in charge."

Mrs. Metcalf, whose hair is greying, told her story tearfully.

SPARED HIM

She said she had not told provincial police officers of the assault because she did not want her husband "to go to the pen." "When I asked him: 'What did you do to your daughter?' he didn't tell me," she testified. "He only asked me if I wanted him to go away."

That was about two weeks ago. Since then she had been trying "to give him another chance."

"I didn't know how to sit at the table with him. I didn't want him to touch anything of mine," she testified.

After Shirley told her what her father had done, Mrs. Metcalf had told her son. They kept a constant watch on the father, and did not let Shirley out of their sight.

The boy, freckled and sun-tanned, and the girl were escorted from the court while Mrs. Metcalf told of the assault.

When they were brought back, their mother was telling how Metcalf "raved" at his son. He grabbed shoes from his hand.

There was a quarrel. Metcalf threw a shovel, then a kettle or a pot from the stove.

TOOK RIFLE FROM WALL

He picked up a .22 calibre rifle from its place on the wall.

"He was going to shoot us," Mrs. Metcalf said. "We were afraid for our lives. But we had unloaded the gun a few days before. My boy told his father it was unloaded, and he put it down."

Meanwhile Shirley had been sent to a neighbor's place to bring help. The quarrel died down, and Mrs. Metcalf went to get her daughter and bring her home.

Husband and wife tried to talk the matter over again.

"I asked my husband if he'd be a decent man if I gave him another chance," the mother told the jury. "He said he'd go to the pen."

Then, Mrs. Metcalf related, he flew at his son again. He hurled the boy on a couch.

"I got the gun and hit him with the butt," she said. "I don't mind saying that I did that. I wasn't going to have him hurt my son." Metcalf went outside and "walked around."

SHELLS FOR PROTECTION

Then, Mrs. Metcalf testified, she "gave the boy two shells to protect Shirley and him and myself."

"Then my husband came in the again, and started in on me. The gun was loaded. My son warned his father not to come closer."

"Through the wall I told Shirley to go and get help again. He (Metcalf) heard me. He started out of the house after Shirley."

"We went out after him. Desmond said to stay where he was. But he started toward me."

"He was close. The children had both seen him choke me before."

"Desmond shot him. He didn't have the gun to his shoulder. I think he held it by his side. I don't know whether he shot him accidentally or whether he pulled the trigger."

"He's dead, and he was no father to my children. He would have shot us anytime."

NOT WITHDRAWING

TIENTSIN (AP)—Anti-Japanese troops of the 37th Chinese Army division were reported Thursday to have precipitated the Sino-Japanese crisis to new depths by a determined refusal to evacuate their positions west of Peiping.

The Chinese were said not only to have refused to abandon the positions commanding the Marco Polo highway bridge and the railroad bridges across the Yungting River, but also to be again manning their entrenchments in the village of Wanpinghsien.

A truce yesterday between local Chinese and Japanese military authorities was thought to have ended the crisis.

Alleged failure of the Japanese to carry out their part of the agreement, however, was said to have caused the Chinese evacuation to be halted abruptly.

RUSSIANS CRITICIZE BRITISH POLICY

MOSCOW (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia and the Communist Party organ Pravda accused Great Britain today of "connivance" with Japan and said there was danger the Chinese-Japanese conflict would spread to South China.

"The decisive moment is nearing which will force foreign governments, particularly Great Britain, to assume a definite position," Izvestia said.

Pravda declared the British government was adopting toward the Far Eastern aggressor the same policy of connivance and compromise it had adopted with aggressors in Europe.

Occupation of Peiping by force, Izvestia continued, would be a step toward "a further expedition into Central and South China."

The committee added that "uncontradicted photographic and oral evidence, corroborated by the admission of the police themselves, established that their treatment of the injured was characterized by the most careless indifference to human life and suffering."

By the frank admission of all the police, no attempt whatsoever was made to render first aid on the field. Wounded and dying strikers were unceremoniously thrown into police patrols along with uninjured prisoners," said the committee.

CLEVELAND, O. — Freedom came Wednesday to Anthony Labrizetta, 34, and George Sargent, 39, after they had served 27 months for a crime they did not commit. The men were released from the Cuyahoga County jail on unconditional pardons from President Roosevelt. They were convicted of a $125,000 Warren mail truck robbery, but later investigation disclosed the crime was committed by gangs of Alvin Karpis.

British Debate Trade Treaties

Empire Pacts Considered in Talks With U.S., Lords
Are Told

LONDON—The British government hoped to see a trade treaty negotiated with the United States, but primarily it must find a sound basis which would not conflict with the broader tenets of Empire policy, Viscount Halifax, Lord President of the Council, declared Wednesday in the House of Lords.

Replying to an appeal from the Marquess of Lothian that the government work for reduction of international trade barriers, Viscount Halifax said the government was not disposed to enter any international action towards trade improvement through conference until it was assured of success.

Moreover, he added, before taking any action on the question of raw materials, the government would wait for the result of the inquiry Premier Van Zeeland of Belgium had undertaken on the joint request of Great Britain and France.

RISE IN COSTS

Lord Lothian said if there was going to be one cause of domestic trouble it would be "if the cost of living rises."

The Liberal peer said he regarded the argument that Great Britain must protect herself against products made by foreign labor as one of the most fraudulent of all.

Lord Arnold, paymaster-general in the Labor government of 1929-31, declared the Ottawa agreements had succeeded in shutting out foreign goods and surrounding a quarter of the world's population with tariff barriers. It was time the government changed its policy before it was too late, he argued. The peace of the world might well depend on what was done by Great Britain in the direction of relieving existing economic tension.

Dental Aid For Children Urged

VANCOUVER—The city council will be asked for a grant of $3,000 to finance operation of a free dental clinic for school children during the rest of this year, it was decided at a meeting of the Metropolitan Health Committee here Wednesday.

A report to the committee said approximately 1,400 school children in grades seven and eight were in urgent need of dental treatment.

Alderman John Bennett said he did not think the city council would be able to make the grant.

WOODWORKERS DEBATE COURSE

TACOMA (AP)—Delegates to a special convention of the International Woodworkers of America were lined solidly behind their leaders today, but doubts increased that the 100,000 members of the organization would all accept quietly the decision to join John L. Lewis's Committee for Industrial Organization.

The convention, awaiting word from its constitutional committee on governing rules for the organization under its new C.I.O. affiliation, on Wednesday reiterated its confidence in President Harold Pritchett of Vancouver, B.C., and his executive board.

The Tacoma local of the union, however, brought doubts about the unity of opinion among the membership to a head when it solidly refused to endorse the C.I.O. vote of the convention. Homer L. Haney, local business agent, said the Tacoma "rank and file" members had declined to take any action in connection with the C.I.O., although they had not openly repudiated the convention as the Willamette, Ore., council had already done.

GUILLOTINE NOW IN PRUSSIA

MAGDEBURG, Germany (AP)—Nation-wide introduction of the guillotine for decapitating culprits condemned to death has cost septuagenarian August Groebler, Prussian headman, his job.

It also settled the vexing problem of his successor.

In adopting the guillotine for Prussia, the Nazi regime followed a practice in vogue for many decades in Bavaria, Wurtemberg, Baden, Hessen, Saxony, Thuringia, Oldenburg, Lubeck, Hanover and the Rhine province. Secrecy today veiled the date when the mechanical axe was substituted for the man-wielded one in Prussia.

The execution machine is a somewhat modernized edition of the guillotine which did its bloody work during the French revolution.

In the days of the Empire and later the republic, one executioner sufficed for all Prussia, that man was August Groebler.

Lotteries For Masons Scored

OTTAWA—Opposition to Free Masons participating in lotteries, particularly those operated allegedly for Masonic purposes, was voiced Wednesday by Grand Master Alexander J. Anderson, Toronto, of the Grand Lodge A. F. and A. M. of Canada in the province of Ontario, at the opening of the 82nd annual communication.

"Gambling and lotteries are contrary to our law," he declared. "As Masons we are charged with the duty of respecting and upholding the law of our country and that of the country which affords us protection whatever we may be."

Asylum Attack Report Is Made

EDMONTON—Investigation of the fatal attack which a patient made recently on Wilfred Potter, attendant at the Ponoka mental hospital, shows that it was a case of "impulsive insanity," according to a report which Dr. E. A. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, has made to Hon. W. W. Cross, Minister of Health.

"In my opinion, all precautions were taken, and although the institution is overcrowded, that point had nothing at all to do with this case. Impulsive insanity gives no warning to anyone, possibly not even to the insane man," says Dr. Braithwaite's report.

Autos Safe at High Speeds, Says Judge

VANCOUVER—With modern cars, well tired, a speed of "even 60 miles an hour" was not necessarily dangerous, Mr. Justice Manson said Wednesday in a Supreme Court judgment.

The ruling awarded James Joseph Grogan, farmer, $1,025 damages against George R. Bailey, auto salesman.

The suit arose out of an automobile collision which occurred near Cloverdale, B.C., December 8, 1936.

In event of an appeal tribunal coming to a different conclusion, the judge assessed Bailey's damages against Grogan at $29.

Damages of John William Bailey, riding in the same car as his brother, were assessed at $3,617 on the same basis.

Story of Murder Is Investigated

DETROIT—A new Black Legion killing was disclosed Wednesday as Dayton Dean, the hooded night rider's confessed executioner, was started toward prison to serve a life term for murder.

Two city detectives said they had been investigating Dean's latest "confession"—that of the hanging of a man in a grove on the eastern edge of Detroit—since last October.

They said the stocky Dean related the killing took place at a Black Legion meeting he attended soon after joining the order four years ago, at which 1,000 persons were present.

BOY CHOSEN TO BE DALAI LAMA

LONDON — A two-and-a-half-year-old boy from the plains near Lake Kokonor in Central Asia had been officially recognized as the reincarnation of the late Dalai Lama, supreme chief of the Tibetan theocrats, who died at Lhasa in December, 1933, according to a Reuter dispatch from Nanking.

His "discovery" was held certain to strengthen the position of his adherents, generally regarded as responsible for the pro-British policy of Tibet. Partisans of the Panchan Lama, second spiritual ruler of Tibet, favor rapprochement with China.

Dispatches from Simla reported the Panchan Lama plans to end his 12-year exile from Tibet and return to his residence

Holy Land Troubles

AFTER A BITTER DEBATE, THE BRITISH House of Commons has agreed to the compromise, deferring the execution of the government's plan to cut Palestine into three parts as recommended by the British Royal Commission. The recommendation to partition the tiny country was made in an effort to end the racial strife that has been increasing as a result of the colonization, and development carried out by the Jews since the settlement at the end of the Great War, when Britain was given a League of Nations mandate over Palestine.

The British commissioners' report, which has been before the House of Commons, set out that the Arab population of Palestine, as well as the Jewish, has increased since 1920; that the Arab landowner has benefited from Jewish immigration; that the Arab peasant is better off on the whole than he was; that the increased wealth brought in by the Jews has made possible the new health and welfare services for the Arab. The Jewish immigration not only brought new capital into the country, but new faith, vigor and hope. It was not only money alone, but the courage of Jewish settlers, largely from the areas of persecution in Eastern Europe, that drained swamp lands, cut down malaria and trachoma, harnessed the Jordan for water-power, tapped the Dead Sea for potash, dug the irrigation ditches and began the task of turning desert back to the Biblical land of milk and honey.

With such progress in the country, it has been difficult for outsiders to understand why friction has been increasing between the racial groups. Jews and Arabs have lived together in Galilee since the time of Christ, and Jews and Arabs have lived and worked together and built a great civilization in Moorish Spain. On extreme Jewish nationalists, as well as on extreme Arab nationalists, has been put the blame for conditions which have forced Britain to its partition proposal. Nazi, Italian and Fascist and other provocative agents have played a part in stirring up unrest among the people.

Those who oppose the partition plan fear it will prove to be not a solution, but only a breeder of new troubles. The part assigned the Jews by the commissioners is only one-quarter of the present area of Palestine and no more than 10 to 15 miles wide in places. The difficulties that now disturb peace between the two peoples might be intensified by being brought face to face across a boundary line. There would be tariff, trade and other disputes. There would be armies and there might be war. Extreme Jewish nationalists would agitate for the capture of Jerusalem; extreme Arab nationalists for conquest of the Jewish state.

It may be that partition is the only solution and that Britain will eventually insist on it. But there is a real fear that the chief result of such action might be to Balkanize Palestine and to end forever the hope that the Holy Land might become not only a refuge for persecuted Jews, but a free and democratic country in which Arab and Jew might live side by side, as people of different languages and racial stock live side by side in Switzerland, independent, prosperous and at peace.

In These Days of Speed

WITH AIRPLANES AND TRAINS streaking on faster schedules from coast to coast, and with science almost daily bringing out some new device to increase the speed of communications, it is almost too easy to scoff at the occasional brave philosopher who longs for the "good old days."

The fact is that some of the mainstays of the "good old days," along with much of the atmosphere of that hazy era, are still in evidence. Proof of one is contained in the news story bearing witness to the survival of a transportation system that had its beginnings before the west got under way. This story told of the greatest single month of June traffic in the history of the Great Lakes. During that month this year, the Sault St. Marie ship canal handled a greater tonnage than was handled even during the boom year of 1929.

The items included in this shipping list are significant—Lumber, flour, wheat and other grains; copper, scrap and pig iron; steel, stone, coal, petroleum products, automobiles and general merchandise—all commodities or material necessary to most individuals some time during their daily lives. Not to be overlooked are the 4,000 passengers, who, apparently, simply preferred that slower kind of travel.

It would be interesting to consider how many other "vestigial remains" from the past have hung on through thick and thin of twentieth century progress. We know there are many of them. Beside our sleek new transportation facilities, the slow lake boats may appear woefully outdated. But they are still delivering people in comfort and delivering the things people need. And, really, that is all they require for their claim to recognition.

A Polish "Sport"

THE POLES HAVE RETURNED TO their favorite outdoor sport of other years—killing Jews. The harrowing details of the latest pogrom, which continued in all its ferocity for 15 hours at Brzesc, are now being revealed.

Early one morning, a Polish inspector entered a Jewish butcher shop and attempted to confiscate a hunk of meat. The butcher charged the inspector with using his official position to rob him of his goods. A fist-fight followed in which the butcher's 16-year-old boy got the better of the inspector. A mob instantly collected. By noon it had grown to 10,000 or more. Every Jewish shop was wrecked.

The mob entered Jewish houses and destroyed and looted. By the afternoon Polish peasants from outlying districts learned of the pogrom and came to the town with their vehicles and axes. Thousands of Jewish families lost all their possessions. The looters even took bedding and clothes away from children and left them crying, wrapped in old jackets.

Brzesc is the capital of the province of Polesie. It has a huge police force and several thousand soldiers are stationed there. Eyewitnesses testify that the authorities made no attempt to stop the looting. On the day following the pogrom, perhaps after being ordered by Warsaw, the police started to round up the offenders. Within a short time they had arrested 300 Christian Poles in whose houses they found loot from Jewish dwellings.

What is the attitude of the Polish Press? "Robotnik," the Socialist organ, is the only newspaper that has condemned the atrocity. The conservative Press even justify it and blame the Jews for the pogrom. The Polish Nazi Press is jubilant. Strangely enough, the "Maily Dziennik," the Catholic party organ, joins with the Nazi "Endek Press" in justifying the pogrom.

Playing Safe With Heat

ALTHOUGH IT ANNOUNCES ITSELF A little more emphatically in some localities, a little more gently in others, that regular midsummer visitor, Heat, nevertheless exacts some toll from everyone, from coast to coast.

In addition to minor unpleasantness, heat may cause serious illness and even death. According to public health doctors, keeping fairly with three little watchwords—"Take it Easy"—is the best protection against these heat hazards.

"Take it Easy" means moderation in eating, exercising, sun-bathing, working. Meat should be eaten but once a day. Raw, leafy vegetables, salads, fruits should be conspicuous on the menu. Drink cool water, but avoid cold drinks. Dress lightly, take frequent baths.

It is pointed out that in the last three decades, New York City has cut its yearly sunstroke case total from more than 700 to a mere 34, largely through education in "taking it easy." That seems to make it good advice for anyone.

Trotzky on Vacation

TIRE D OF CIVILIZATION, LEON TROZKY, arch-disciple of Bolshevism, has left his haven in Mexico City to be gone "a long time" on an extensive fishing trip. His destination was unrevealed. Regardless of the varying opinions which this news will inspire, Trotzky's vacation is bound to be an interesting experiment, for himself at least.

For one thing, he will have a chance to observe how his own inimitable brand of "civilization" works out when it is not contaminated by association with the adulterated varieties in vogue with most modern nations. Few really will care how long Trotzky stays away on his fishing trip. It will mean a sad dearth of quips for the columnists, and possibly will reduce the volume of Stalin's treason trials. The only fearful thing about it all is that Trotzky will come back—dragging a new prize string of red herrings.

Notes

The explanation of some shorts and slacks is that the wearer cannot see how they look to others.

Col. Leonard P. Ayres, the economist, reports stock trading, measured in per cent of national income, is near the low level of 65 years. This is not news to brokers.

Wilkie Mahoney stood next to Shirley Temple after the Hollywood premier of "Wee Willie Winkie." A dotting lady, anxious to hear Shirley speak some words, patted her head and asked: "And whose little girl are you?" Mahoney interrupted: "20th Century-Fox's... with options!"

In an appraisal of the labor, political and economic situation, Major L. L. B. Angus, the British economist who at the low point of the depression predicted the "coming American boom," points out that underlying economic conditions are the same as before. The "money managers" put on the brakes to check the rapid rise in prices. Inflation is here even though coupled with temporary low monetary velocity, he says. As to the labor situation, he takes the realistic viewpoint that it is not all black and that strikes run in waves but eventually lose their momentum. Wages ought, in theory, to be raised more or less parallel with output and with prices, but too rapid increase in wages, he warns, brings its own reaction.

Loose Ends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

DROUGHT

TODAY we entered the Canadian Dust Bowl, the desert of drought that you have read about. But it is not a desert really, as you may have imagined. It is still green, but a frail, pale, deceptive green—the green of thin stalks of grain, six inches high, that have burst out into premature heads, useless, not worth reaping. They have turned the cattle out in the fields that they sowed in the spring, hoping then that they would yield their first crop in seven or eight years.

Once more Nature has foiled them. Rain came today, driving rain across the central plain of Canada, but it is too late, far too late. The little stalks of grain, parched in the stricken soil, cannot drink in the precious moisture now. Their life cycle is complete. They have borne their worthless seeds, their premature offspring, that is not even good feed for cattle. All around us, from the Manitoba boundary out to the middle of Alberta, lies this green waste of shriveling stalks that soon will turn to yellow in a soil that will blow away on the wind.

SEVEN YEARS

THE FARMERS here are getting used now to disaster. For seven years, and in some places for eight, these men of the prairies have ploughed up their fields, trudging down their long, sleek furrows, following their harrows, drilling in their seed. For seven springs they have watched the earth, drying out already after the snow, and searched the steel blue sky for any sign of rain. For seven years they have watched the seed sprout across the brown earth and surge up like a green wash from the Lakes to the Mountains. For seven years they have hung on, believing that at last the long drought must end, at last the grain must grow as it has always grown before.

Now, with a kind of dull desperation born of seven or eight years' famine, the farmer turns once more to his fields—not to sow them, not to reap, but to plough the worthless stalks back into the land which once more has failed him. All over the prairies they are ploughing in the stubby, lean stalks so that they may at least add some humus to the hungry soil—the grain which was sown to feed hungry people at the ends of the earth.

Besides the farmer as he ploughs are lean horses and cows, eating the poor remains of the crop, but they cannot survive long on this fare. Soon they must be slaughtered or moved north, where there is a crop. Nothing can live on this earth, parched down into its depths by seven dry years. The people themselves would have starved to death long ago if the Canadian taxpayers hadn't kept them on relief. This at least is a tribute to our civilization which, with all its faults, will not let people starve while there is food in the land. In older civilizations these prairie people would have died in thousands or moved away, like a retreating army, into the green lands up north.

FLIGHT

SOME OF them have gone already. Out of the train window I have been looking at many an empty farm, left there, after a lifetime of toil, its fences falling down, its barns in ruin, the trees at the doorway dying slowly. A few minutes ago I saw a farmhouse on the hill, and it seemed to me to be a picture of this whole drought-stricken region, a haunting vision of desolation which one could never forget. The huge, square house, with its black windows, its empty doors, looked like a death's head on the hillside, like a man who had dropped down here, dying under the fierce prairie sun.

How many years have men toiled around this house, reaped their crops, come home here to eat and sleep at the day's end? How many women have toiled in this house, and how many children have played about this abandoned yard? They had their dreams here in this house, their hope of better days when they could make a trip out to the Pacific Coast, maybe, or buy a new car. The dreams are over now, and no one knows where these people have gone, what has happened to them. The farm which was to have made some family comfortable for life is blowing slowly away. Its soil will blow east as far as the Atlantic, and great drifts of it will pile up against the house and barns, sitting into the rooms. This is the end of civilization here, the end of men's march into the West. This is retreat from the West.

Out in Victoria tonight no one is thinking of this parched prairie. There will be big red and yellow hollyhocks in the gardens, and fellows will be playing golf at Colwood and Oak Bay, and the children will be swimming at Brentwood and Shawnigan. It will be cool and fresh in Victoria tonight, with sleek growth everywhere. Mr. Beak's green peas will be fine now, and his vegetable marrows will be forming on the vines.

But here no vegetable grows, no food for man or beast, no green thing to cover the tortured earth. At Moose Jaw, they say, even the trees in the gardens are beginning to die, and if you water your garden for two hours the ground is still like ashes. But there will soon be no water for any garden, barely enough for household use.

The travelers on this train stop looking out the windows. The sight of the Dust Bowl is too depressing. This is the prairie's tragedy, they seem to think, not ours. But it is ours. Every stalk of wheat that heads out with no grain in it is a loss of some small fraction of a cent to every man in Canada. Multiply the stalks by millions and you see how much we are all losing here under the cruel prairie sun.

THE STARLING TRIBE

From The Windsor Star

Over in Detroit a kind-hearted man knocked out a piece of the wall of a house in order to rescue a fledgling starling which had become imprisoned.

Here and elsewhere people have gone to great trouble and expense in trying to do away with the whole starling tribe because of annoyance and damage caused by these lively birds.

Armed Forces of Europe

From The New York Times

THE RUSSIAN and Italian armies are the military question marks of Europe. The Russian moujik, patient, plodding; the Don Cossack, spectacular, showy; the trotting Bersaglieri of Italy, jogging tirelessly for mile on endless mile, their black-dyed plumes blowing in the wind; the giant horsemen of the Royal Guard, breastplates gleaming, sabres flashing silver against the crumbling walls of ancient Rome. There is no doubt of the Englishman's bulldog tenacity nor of his technical capacity; Germany's military machine is the nemesis of the Continent, and the Frenchman's fiery courage and martial ability are well known.

But the Red Army is as much of an enigma to western minds as the land which gave it birth. There is about its big battalions an air of mystery which none of the world's military attaches have been able to penetrate. Its army of about 1,600,000 men (including the army, navy, air force, border guard and secret police) is the world's largest; its tank force of 4,500 is the world's largest; its flying fleet is the world's largest; in mass power it should be the world's most impressive army.

But the Colossus may have feet of clay. Until a few years ago its illiterate moujiks were equipped with a "Vintofka" (rifle) so simple it could not be spoiled by mistreatment; the bayonets were welded to the rifles to prevent their use as carving knives and axes and for miscellaneous un-military purposes. These were not men-at-arms proud of their weapons; these were peasants who had had arms thrust into their hands. And the Russians' unorthodox use of great masses of cavalry thrown pell-mell into battle with tanks and armored cars, their apparent lack of efficient staff work, the Oriental—and to us inexplicable—cast of their psychology, the evidence of internal schisms, political interference, and of treachery or stupidity, all support the contention of those who hold that the Red Army is—despite its mass—but a doubtful fighting machine.

The Italian warrior is the antithesis of the Russian. The Italian is as volatile as the Russian is stolid; the Italian is fiery and tempestuous, an individualist impelled to sudden deeds of startling valor—but perhaps unschooled in the collective discipline of war. When Il Duce's black Askaris, led by their white officers on little burros, and his half-naked, gun-brandishing Dubats, backed up by Italian regulars and Black Shirts, avenged the "stain of Adowa" the stock of the Italian military machine rose unwarrantedly high in the world's estimation.

When Black Shirts "volunteers" and a hastily-assembled hodge-podge of men and machines met the debacle at Guadalajara outside of Madrid, Europe said: "I told you so," and the stock of the Italian military machine fell unwarrantedly low. That the truth about the Italian Army probably lies somewhere between those extremes the astute General von Blomberg, Field-Marshal of Germany, undoubtedly saw when the Italians tried to impress him with their military might during his recent visit to Italy. For, like the French soldier, the Italian is undoubtedly considerably better than he looks.

How much better, and what degree of military efficiency that implies, is a matter of the question of Russian martial might. For the armies of the Soviet and of Il Duce are important pawns in the dangerous chess game of politics that Europe is now playing, and upon their reputation and their prestige—or lack of it—may depend not only the national destinies of two countries but the future history of the Continent itself.

"SMELLIES" NEXT

From The Winnipeg Tribune

Whether or not the advent of warm weather which usually ushers in the silly season in Britain is responsible for it we do not know, but a London correspondent announces that a new terror threatens movie patrons. He states that he has it on good authority that a patent has been taken out in Washington for an apparatus to synchronize smells with the scenes in films.

If olfactory realism is to be the keynote of future movies, those who have lived "somewhere east of Suez" may be inclined to stay away when a glamorous "Oriental film" is announced. But is the London writer spoofing? We smell a rat.

Then the priests the Levites arose and blessed the people: and their voice was heard, and their prayer came up to His holy dwelling place, even unto heaven—2 Chronicles 20:27. TATTOO WILL BE ELABORATE

Many Spectacular Events Arranged For August Evenings

Plans are being completed for the naval and military tattoo at Macdonald Park on August 2 and 3. It is anticipated it will be one of the most elaborate events of its kind ever staged in the city.

One of the highlights of the programme will be an historical parade by the 5th (B.C.) Coast Brigade, R.C.A. This pageant will depict five periods of the brigade, from 1862, the year of Victoria's incorporation, to the present time.

The first period will show the Victoria Volunteers of 1862; the second, the Victoria Rifles of 1877; the third, the South African War and the 5th Regiment Canadian Garrison Artillery; the fourth, the Great War, and the fifth, the regiment of the present day.

Men of H.M.S. Exeter, which will be visiting here from the West Indies, will appear in a sailors' hornpipe and a few de jole.

There will be selections by a massed band, a field gun display by the Canadian navy, gymnastics and physical training demonstration by Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, ambush of convoy and the grand finale, which will be given by the massed troops and the massed bands.

Letters to the Editor

FOR BLIND GIRLS

To the Editor:—Girls with little or no sight whose disability formerly prevented them from proceeding to a public school are no longer debarred this great privilege. Chorleywood College, Herts, set high in lovely grounds, with swimming-pool and airy halls, has been specially arranged for the accommodation of such girls. There, in sympathetic companionship, they can build up school-day memories and prepare for the battle of life. Many pass on to a university career.

The college has an able board of governors nominated by the National Institute for the Blind, and its public school character is jealously guarded. The only tragedy—and it is indeed a tragedy—lies in the fact that so few parents of such girls seem aware of its existence; their daughters thus lose a great opportunity.

Arrangements have now been made for the accommodation of still more boarders, and the governors wish these new vacancies to be filled not only by girls from the United Kingdom, but also by girls from other parts of the Empire. The fees are £150 per annum, and there are bursaries for promising pupils whose parents are unable to pay full fees. This letter is sent to the press

"RUINATION" ON PRAIRIES

To the Editor:—In reading the July 15 issue of The Daily Times the headline "No Gardens As Far North As Saskatoon" attracted my attention. I read the first part of this news with interest, the second part with indignation. It is an old saying that far-off pastures look greener, but in Mr. Clawson's case they seem to look more arid and desolate. He is quoted as saying: "It sounds fanciful to you. You haven't seen it." It sounds fanciful to me, and I have seen it.

It is a well-known fact that many thousands of acres of farm lands in Saskatchewan are ruined and that the farmers owning these lands are destitute. We also know that they are short of clothing, but Mr. Clawson makes no reference to provincial relief. Many farmers in all parts of the province are receiving relief. Mr. Clawson also states that the farmers are flocking into the cities to receive relief. This is absolutely untrue. Some families have tried to move into the cities but have been sent back to their own municipalities by the authorities. To make out that the farmers are trekking into the cities in a starving condition is absurd. We also read that the cities are falling into a state of disrepair. I cannot speak for all the cities in Saskatchewan, but I do know that such is not the case in Saskatoon. I was in Saskatoon last November and was much impressed with the appearance of the city. I saw many new and tasteful homes, freshly painted, with well-planned gardens. You will see more dirty, dilapidated and ruinous buildings in Victoria than in Saskatoon.

There are many former Carrot River residents in this city, and it must have burnt them up to read that the soil there is only fit for growing potatoes. These people would not be living here in retirement if such was the case. For your benefit, and Mr. Clawson's, I would say that Carrot River always has been, and still is, one of the finest farming areas in Saskatchewan.

TAG DAYS FOR VETERANS

To the Editor:—I noticed a letter in Saturday's Times, in which one of your readers complains about tag days. I am in full agreement with him. There are too many, and I say that only about one-third of them should be allowed. But I was sorry that the writer referred to the Canadian Pensioners' Association. Although I am an ex-Imperial, and not a member of that body, I would gladly support them on every occasion, because they are doing good work for the Canadian pensioners, without receiving big salaries and concentrating on that work alone. If it were not for that association many Canadian pensioners would have been in a bad position today.

It was stated a short time ago that such an organization was not needed, because the Canadian Legion were doing such work. I may say now that if the Canadian Legion had been attending to all Canadian pensioners' affairs, such a body would never have been formed. No doubt someone will answer my letter, pointing out what the Legion has done, but will they point out what they have neglected to do, and why? There are hundreds of ex-service men in this city who are not members of any organization of ex-service men. Ask them why, and they will tell you candidly that the majority of veterans' clubs are only beer parlors, for which the man in the street can get the same privileges (except for attending meetings).

The Canadian Pensioners' Association and the Imperial Veterans' Association (also recently formed), I am glad to say, do not go in for beer business, but concentrate on doing voluntary work for their comrades. I was pleased that the Canadian Pensioners had success on their tag day.

Many Attend Garden Fete At "Clovelly"

Mrs. E. W. Hamber Opens I.O.D.E. Chapter Party

Nearly 400 guests availed themselves of the generous hospitality of Lady Barnard in again throwing open the beautiful grounds of "Clovelly" for the annual garden party given under the auspices of the Mary Croft Esquimalt Chapter, I.O.D.E., with a resultant addition to the chapter funds of approximately $230.

Mrs. Eric Hamber, wife of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor in declaring the affair open, expressed appreciation of the work of the order. Mrs. Hamber, who was introduced by the regent, Mrs. G. P. Clarke, was presented with a handsome basket of flowers by little Patsy Warren-Smith. Mrs. McMicking as senior member of the order was also honored, receiving a charming Victorian posy from Joan Clarke.

The garden presented a very animated scene as in the brilliant sunshine of a typical Victoria summer's day, the guests, in gay attire, strolled across the lawns and admired the lily pond, begonias and countless other beauties of the cunningly planned gardens. In the flower-decked pavilion and adjacent lawn tea was served. Seated at the honor table, presided over by Mrs. G. P. Clarke and Mrs. H. A. Allen, were Lady Barnard, Mrs. Eric Hamber, Mrs. Curtis Sampson, Mrs. L. A. Genge, Mrs. W. Ellis, Mrs. C. T. Beard, Mrs. J. D. McDonald, Mrs. Rice, Mrs. E. V. Finland and Mrs. A. Lockley. The tea arrangements were made by Mrs. C. L. Bishop, Mrs. Warren Smith and Mrs. Lockley. A busy bevy of young girls, adorned with dainty aprons and bandeaux of purple and yellow, Claire Cresine, Irene Hall, Irma Neill, Marjorie Clare and Jean McConnell were glad of the yeomen assistance rendered by sea cadet Gerald Bishop and two Esquimalt Boy Scouts in the rush of serving some hundreds of teas simultaneously.

Queues waited outside the bowers where Mrs. Mossop and Mrs. Carter gave glimpses into the future. At the home cooking stall were Mrs. J. Mason and Mrs. J. T. Jones, Mrs. G. Pocock and Mrs. D. McIntyre sold superfluities, and the prettily decorated candy stall was convened by Mrs. H. Cresine, assisted by Esquimalt Brownies. Brownies of this pack supervised by Mrs. R. P. Matheson also took charge of the "River of Gold." Mrs. J. Quinn ran a lively house-housie table. Miss Phyllis Pooley and Miss Marcia Prior were in charge of competitions.

Indoors, in the reception rooms, bright and fragrant with masses of gladioli, poppies, roses and jasmine ten tables of bridge were in play, under the convenship of Lady Barnard, and tea was served to the players. Mrs. J. H. D. Benson and Miss Muriel Galt were winners of the bridge prizes.

Mrs. H. D. Austin was in charge of tea tickets, and Mrs. A. Youngman and Mrs. C. Cross were at the gate.

Winners of competitions were: Ham, Mrs. E. Hamber; candy, Mrs. Fred Spencer; tea napkins, Mrs. Hermann Robertson; cake, Mrs. Kylie Symons; electric clock, R. P. Matheson; electric clock, Mrs. Calder; lucky numbers at the gate were 515, 775, 793, 721 and 509.

Less Talk And More Study

Need Education On Biological Basis

VANCOUVER (CP)—Need of education on a biological basis was stressed yesterday by Dr. Abby Marlett, director of the home economics department of the University of Washington, when she addressed delegates to the Pan-Pacific Women's Association Conference at the University of British Columbia.

"We should know about ductless glands that seemingly cause us to do unsocial and unsatisfactory things. Talk less of peace and give more time to this study, and find why we are as we are," she urged.

"Women need to educate their menfolk, for men are only grown children," Dr. Marlett continued. "There is a technique to this. Make your suggestion in a roundabout way and you will be surprised how it will come back as an original suggestion."

Contributions to the subject under discussion, "The Adjustment of Education to Changing Social Conditions," were made by other speakers from Pan-Pacific countries.

Miss Fanny Taylor, Dominion president of the Teachers' Association of New Zealand, told of how 8,000 Maori children were being trained at free compulsory schools which became social centres of an idea similar to that of the Canadian Women's Institute, which sponsored health services in villages.

Miss Mei-Yu-Chen, dean of women at the Nanking Central University, which is attended by students of both sexes, said her greatest problem was causing the young men who brought their love troubles to her. She said the sexes engaged in all studies impartially, the women adopting men's names that there might be no discrimination.

Mrs. Elizabeth Appleton, teacher of languages at the Mid-Pacific Institute, Hawaii, described that country as a "social laboratory" where all races were fused together.

"The territorial university (Hawaii) has a drama guild," she said, "which produces four plays a year—Japanese, Chinese, a Hawaiian pageant and a play from one Caucasian country. Each play is in English, and the actors representative of the play's country of origin."

Vancouver speakers were Mrs. R. W. Sugarman, who discussed the progress of folk song and dance festivals among new Canadians, and Mrs. Edward Mahon.

Mrs. Roberta Lawson was chairman.

After lunching at the University of British Columbia, delegates were entertained by a showing of travel films, and later went to the Jericho Country Club for tea.

Princesses To Become Guides

It is understood they will be members of a new company to be formed at Buckingham Palace. It will be a private company made up of their friends and the daughters of regular visitors to the palace.

The newspaper points out this step follows the footsteps of the Queen, who was a district commissioner of Guides in Scotland and who still takes an active interest in the movement.

Burns Club At Annual Picnic

The attractive country home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jameson on the banks of the Sooke River was the scene of the annual picnic of the Victoria Burns Club yesterday afternoon. More than 150 members and their friends attended, leaving the Vancouver Island Coach Lines Depot at 1:30 in the afternoon and returning to the city at 9 in the evening.

Under ideal weather conditions, the picnicers had a wonderful afternoon. They engaged in swimming and diving events, and there were comic races, after which the prizes were presented by Mrs. Jameson. Music during the afternoon was provided by Miss Lillian Grant of Victoria and Ian McIntosh of New Westminster.

W. B. Grant, president of the club, proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Jameson for their hospitality, after which the crowd gave three hearty cheers, followed by "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the King."

The committee in charge of the picnic included W. B. Grant, J. A. Dewar, Dr. Wallace R. Gunn, J. McMartin and Edward M. Whyte.

Oil fields in the mandated territory of New Guinea, now under Australian control, are to be developed on a large scale.

WALLS-FOX

St. Stephen's Church, Mount Newton, Saanichton, formed the setting for a pretty wedding yesterday afternoon at 2:30 when Rev. J. S. A. Bastin, united in marriage Doris, youngest daughter of Mrs. Herbert Fox of Saanichton and the late Mr. Fox, and Mr. Horace Walls, second son of Mrs. J. P. Walls, Superior Street, and the late Mr. Walls.

The ceremony had been banked with roses, lilies and Shasta daisies, the attractive decorations being the handiwork of the bride's cousin, Mrs. W. Baylis, and her son, Leslie Baylis.

Mrs. Bastin presided at the organ. The hymn, "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden," was sung as the bride entered the church with her brother, Mr. Bert Fox, who gave her in marriage. She wore a smart tailored Viennese model ensemble in a shade of petrol blue, a large chocolate brown rustic straw hat trimmed with flowers to harmonize with the ensemble, and her accessories were also brown. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses. During the service, which was fully choral, the hymn, "O Perfect Love," was sung and the "Wedding March" was played during the signing of the register.

The bride and groom were unattended.

After the service, a reception for relatives and a few close friends was held at the home of the bride's mother, where masses of Dorothy Perkins roses were arranged. Mrs. Fox welcomed the guests, attired in a redingote dress of black and silver triple sheer, a black and white hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses and mauve stocks. She was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Walls, who wore a powder blue figured georgette dress, a white hat and a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

The bride and groom stood beneath an arch of pink and white ramblers roses, centred by a bell of blue hydrangea blossoms. After the couple had received the good wishes of their friends, refreshments were served in the dining-room, where pink carnations and roses were arranged. Pink candles in pewee candlesticks and silver vases of pink and white roses adorned the table, which was centred by the wedding cake, which was cut by the bride after a toast had been proposed by Rev. J. S. A. Bastin.

Mr. and Mrs. Walls left later in the afternoon for a motor trip up the island, and on their return will take up residence at 2342 Howard Street. For traveling, the bride chose a shell pink flat crepe silk dress and a brown wool coat with a fox collar and brown accessories.

New Methods For Training Children

Guidance Is Used Instead
Of Discipline

NEW YORK—In the modern parent's vocabulary "guidance" has become the proper term for the business of training children and "discipline" is outmoded, says Miss Jessie Stanton, head of the nursery division of the Harriet Johnson Experimental School.

Sounding less severe, the word "guidance" properly defines the relationship of parent and child, says Miss Stanton, who finds child training fascinating. She explains the difference.

In Victorian days children regarded their parents as ogres, who did nothing but command, forbid and prevent.

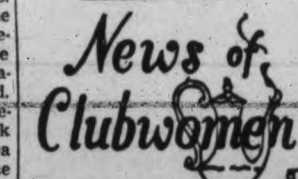

Nowadays the wise parent tries to make his child forget the difference in years, says Miss Stanton. He is firm with the youngster, but tries to understand what is going on in his mind. The parent is a guide, not a disciplinarian.

"Of course children need guidance," she continued. "They should have complete freedom only when they are on their own. That means freedom in play. But they have to be told when to eat and when to go to bed."

"Give them plenty of time to prepare themselves for the change. Here in the nursery school we give the children five minutes warning before meal time, before they take their naps and before they go outdoors to play."

"A child's mind works very slowly. You say, 'Come to dinner right away,' and he bursts into tears. Give him time to adjust himself. Say instead, 'The carrots are boiling, and you must get ready to eat them.' Then he'll have time to pick up his playthings in anticipation of the coming meal."

Do not expect the same kind of obedience from a child when he is tired, warns Miss Stanton. At the end of the day he reacts even more slowly than normally.

The Ladies' Auxiliary organizing committee of the Imperial Veterans' Association, Victoria Branch, will hold its next meeting tomorrow evening at 8 in Room 225, Pemberton Building. All ladies formerly connected with Imperial associations are invited to attend.

Queen Alexandra Review No. 1, W.B.A., met in the A.O.F. Hall on Monday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Ritchie, the past president, Mrs. Burnett, opened the meeting and all members stood in silence to the memory of a beloved member, Mrs. Barbara Hunter Nesbitt, who passed away in Scotland. All members were asked to attend the next meeting as business of importance will be discussed.

Feuilleton— ANDREW and IMOGENE

By ROE FULKERSON

"I have to go on my diet again," said Imogene positively.

"Please don't!" begged Andrew.

"Now, Andrew, why should you say that? You know I do it entirely for your sake."

"If you are doing it for me, you can just forget it."

"Don't be silly! If I got fat, you wouldn't like me a bit."

"But you aren't fat!"

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of diet," said Imogene. "I know I am not fat, but I am not going to get that way, either."

"You are doing this for me?" asked Andrew.

"I certainly am."

"Then don't blame me for it, I asked you not to."

"Why should I blame you for it?"

"Blessed if I understand!" sighed Andrew. "All I know is that if you get one extra pound on your hips, you start in on that rigid diet of yours for a week until you lose the offending pound. But all the time you are dieting, you act like a bear with a sore paw. You growl at me eternally. You comment on my appetite and my table manners. Everything connected with food seems to irritate you. For some mysterious reason, you seem to blame the whole thing on me!"

"Why shouldn't I blame it on you? I am doing it for you, am I not? I know how you feel about fat women. I am not going to be one because I know that if I allowed myself to become obese, you would wander off after some slender stripling and stop loving me. Dieting is the price of your love and I will pay it, but I refuse to be pleasant about it."

"Were you ever really hungry? Did you ever sit at a table loaded with good food and have to get up from it unsatisfied? The answer is that you did not, and not only that, but you haven't enough strength of character to do it even if you wanted to!"

"If I did anything to make you hungry as it makes me to please you, you would either get to be the shape of a goose egg, or else you would leave me! There is no better evidence of my love for you than that I am willing to diet to hold you. And if I am, you should be perfectly willing to let me row with you about it."

"Imagine a dinner of fried chicken, green corn, hot biscuits and milk gravy. Could you sit through that and get up and walk away hungry?"

"When are we going to have it?" asked Andrew eagerly.

"Suppose we had lemon layer cake with whipped cream for dessert," said Imogene, ignoring his question. "Could you sit by and watch me eat it and refuse to take any yourself? There isn't a chance in the world that you love me that much."

"I think that lemon layer cake with whipped cream would be a nice light dessert for that fried chicken dinner you were just talking about," said Andrew.

"You are so crazy about food that right now you have entirely forgotten what we were talking about!"

"I have not! We were talking about fried chicken with hot biscuits and milk gravy!"

"We were discussing my going on a diet," said Imogene firmly. "The fried chicken was incidental."

"No such thing! The rest of the things are incidental to the fried chicken. In behalf of the fried chicken, I resent its being called incidental."

"I am five pounds overweight," said Imogene sadly. "It will take me a week or ten days to get rid of it."

"I could go on a fishing trip," said Andrew reflectively. "I think it would make both of us happier."

"You'll do no such thing!" snapped Imogene. "If I am going on a diet, you are going to stay right here and suffer with me!"

Actor's Widow Is Dress Extra

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)—The woman who once was the envy of many film fans as the wife of Rudolph Valentino, romantic idol of the silent screen, was found today wearing a dress extra.

Jean Acker, who married Valentino in 1923 and was his wife for three years thereafter, is among the evening-gowned women working in the banquet hall settings of David O. Selznick's technicolor production which co-stars Carole Lombard and Fredric March.

But Miss Acker, who once worked under long-term contract in this same studio then the property of another producer, makes no complaint.

"My story is not so sad as you may believe," she said.

"In 1929 I had amassed a fortune of $300,000 and that same year the market crash swept it all away."

She says she simply returned to Hollywood when her small re-

Veterans Favor Dominion Care

Trials at Meeting Here Urged Single Council For City

move instigated by Cal. veterans to have the welfare of unemployed ex-servicemen made entirely a federal affair was heartily endorsed at a meeting of the Imperial Veterans' Association in the Y.M.C.A. building last night.

Representative members were present at the session, with B. F. Seed in the chair.

The meeting also strongly approved of a suggestion for the formation of a city veterans' council with representation from all returned soldiers' groups in the city.

It was announced that W. E. Macdonald, Vancouver, secretary of the British Columbia section of the Imperial Veterans' Association, at the national convention to be held in Brantford, Ont., starting August 1. The convention has among its aims the incorporation under a single charter of all the imperial veterans' groups in the Dominion.

The branch will hold a picnic in conjunction with the ladies' auxiliary within the next few weeks, it was decided. The date will be announced later.

ITALIAN IN COMMAND

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France — The "General Garda" who commands volunteer aviation in insurgent Spain — which means practically all of the insurgent air force — is said by a reliable source to be Mario Bernasconi, Italian aviation divisional general. Gen. Bernasconi is widely known for having developed the high-speed aviation school on Lake Garda, Italy. He accompanied the Italian Schneider Cup team to England, for competition with Great Britain in 1923.

TELESCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel!"

FRIDAY, JULY 23, 1937

After the early morning hours adverse planetary aspects rule strongly today, according to astrology. Later hours portend evil.

Before the sun is high in the heavens whatever is really constructive and progressive should be pushed with energy. The day encourages building and retoolmaking.

Architects should benefit in the forenoon through contracts for ambitious projects. Effort to make cities beautiful will be encouraged through planetary influences.

This is not a fortunate day for many persons who long have enjoyed places of prominence in political or private life.

Women who have assumed public service in any form should be cautious lest they make blunders, especially those of a diplomatic nature. They should watch their words.

This is a threatening way for romance, and deeds may be temporarily successful for girls who covet suitors.

Through this day of midsummer both men and women may be inclined toward double-dealing and underhand methods. The planetary government does not encourage high motives.

Heat waves may cause widespread suffering before the end of the month. Clothing should be chosen wisely. Air-conditioning now will be widely used.

Persons whose birthdate it is the augury of a year of rapid advancement in business or the professions. Political appointments are foretold for a few.

Persons who are this day probably will be resourceful, clever in any vocation chosen and generally successful.

Francois Eugene Vioza, French detective and adventurer, was born on this day.

Persons who have celebrated it as a birthday include Albert Shaw, writer and editor, 1887, and Charlotte Cushman, actress, 1857.

Hornsby May Try to Enforce His Contract

Sports Mirror

By PETE SALLAWAY

LIKE a bolt out of the blue, Rogers Hornsby, manager of the St. Louis Browns in the American Baseball League, received his walking ticket yesterday. There had been no rumors that "The Rajah" would get the gate even though the luckless Browns are resting in seventh position. That was more or less the natural thing. Hornsby was figured to be doing a fair job with the club considering the material he had to work with. And he was expected to hold his post until next season, anyway, as his contract read until 1938, but apparently that piece of paper proved no safer than the famous Treaty of Versailles.

Hornsby, often referred to as the "greatest right-handed hitter of modern times," has experienced little success in his role of manager. Granted that he has not had a number one club to put into the campaigns, but at that, his managerial ability has not set the majors afire. Hornsby took over the Browns in July, 1933, after Wade Kilgore had been deposed and Alan Sothern looked after the job for nine days. The club finished eighth and last that season. In 1934 Hornsby managed to pull it up to finish sixth, but dropped back to seventh in 1935 and failed to gain any ground last season.

Hornsby is the case of another brilliant player who has been unable to make the grade as a boss. For six straight years from 1920 through to 1925 Hornsby led the National League in batting for an all-time league record. He was a member of the St. Louis Cardinals. In 1928, playing with Boston, Hornsby came back to take the title for the seventh time. The only other player to ever win the crown more successive seasons was the great Ty Cobb in the American with nine straight.

"The Rajah" also captured the runs batted in championship in 1925 and is a member of the select group of 400 hitters for 100 or more games. He earned the right in three seasons with averages of .401 in 1922, .424 in 1924 and .403 in 1925. Cobb is the only other hitter to ever bat over the 400 mark in three campaigns. Hornsby also joined the group of long service players, in his day as a regular, with 20 years' service. He played in 2,227 games, went to bat 8,088 times, got 2,905 hits and scored 1,670 runs for a life-time batting average of .359. Hornsby's mark of 424 in 1924 set a modern major league batting record. He was twice voted the National League's most valuable player.

Here's one for the baseball book: A triple, a double and a single in succession failed to produce a run for the Davenport Blue Sox the night of July 10, against Des Moines, yet the bases remained filled and not a single out was made on the three hits.

Here's how it happened: Floyd hit a triple. Peddicord fanned. With the Des Moines infield playing in on the grass, Floyd popped the ball into short left. It was not caught and Floyd went into second standing up, but Floyd, watching the play was unable to get home. Prerost followed with a roller down third base and again Floyd had to stop on third, watching Prerost beat out the tap.

To add an even odder ending to the affair, Floyd scored on a pop fly to second. Van Camp hoisted a drive that the second sacker caught with his back to the plate, and Floyd beat the throw.

Deposed Manager Of St. Louis Is Studying Action

"Rajah" Can Appeal to Baseball Commissioner Landis Or Go to Court
Cubs Move Ahead

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, deposed manager of the impotent St. Louis Browns, studied possible legal action today to enforce his contract through the remainder of the year.

Hornsby and his assistant, coach Charlie O'Leary, were dismissed suddenly yesterday, and were replaced by "Sunny Jim" Bottomley, as manager, and Charles "Gabby" Street, former Cardinal and St. Paul manager, as coach.

Hornsby, who has been manager since the middle of the 1933 season, said he turned down "a $5,000 offer of settlement" because he believed his contract should hold good to the end of the 1938 season. Last year he was signed to a two-year contract calling for a salary of $18,000 a year.

WANTS FOR CLUB

Asked if he would appeal to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis, or if he contemplates any legal action, Hornsby said "not until I find out just what the club is going to do about the contract."

"Mr. Barnes (Don Barnes, president of the Browns) offered me $5,000 yesterday after he informed me that I was released as manager, but I did not accept anything," he added, "and I'm waiting to learn what the club intends to do."

Barnes countered: "Our attorneys have given their opinion that the contract could be terminated abruptly."

"No swift changes will take place," Bottomley said, "and the lineup will stay as it is."

The wolves are different in St. Louis.

Anywhere else, when they start to howl, the chances are they'd get some ball players. But when they open up on the Browns, they wind up with the manager's scalp, and don't ask why.

If anyone could have done a better job with the Browns than old "Rajah" Hornsby, he hasn't made his appearance in big-time ball up to now. Certainly, no one can do any better with the material at hand.

That he finished out of the cellar last year was a miracle.

The new Browns' bosses might have taken a tip from the Boston Bees. Bob Quinn moved in there two years ago and found a club dying on its feet. But instead of pouring it on Bill McKenchie he has backed Bill up.

Lou Fette and Jim Turner, a couple of 30-year-old "rookies," are the latest with whom Quinn and McKenchie have come up to batte batting opposition. Fette and Johnny Lanning, a second-year man, walloped the St. Louis Cardinals in both ends of a doubleheader, 5 to 1 and 2 to 1, yesterday.

TWO-HIT PERFORMANCE

A homer by Ray Mueller with the bases loaded in the 11th inning won the first game for Fette. Then Lanning, matched against Dizzy Dean, tossed a two-hitter. The Chicago Cubs, meantime, stretched their National League lead to two full games over the crippled New York Giants by whipping the Phillies in a twin bill, 4 to 1, and 6 to 0.

A five-run rally in the fifth gave the Cincinnati Reds a 6 to 5 decision over the Giants. George Jeffcoat blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates for a 6 to 0 Brooklyn win.

Although "Sunny Jim" Bottomley was the new manager for the Browns, it was the same old ball club. The New York Yankees trimmed them, as usual, 6 to 3.

Jimmy Foxx smashed out two homers for the second straight day to lead the Boston Red Sox in a 10 to 3 walloping of the Detroit Tigers. Washington's Senators topped the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3. The Cleveland Indians won from the Philadelphia Athletics, 4 to 2.

BROWN GIVES BRITISH WIN

Oxford-Cambridge Track Team Captain Rallies After Fall to Win Meet

TORONTO—The dazzling captain of Oxford-Cambridge's track team, Arthur Godfrey Brown, recovered from a crushing fall here last night to win lone-handed a dual track meet against a surprisingly powerful Toronto West End Y.M.C.A. team by a margin of seven first places to six.

Brown, one of the world's best quarter-mile runners, stumbled in the 440-yard event as he rounded the turn at the end of the stretch. Bill Fritz of West End, who also holds world ranking at the distance, galloped home ahead.

The result was a six-all tie with only the 1,320-yard relay left on the programme and this was Brown's chance to rally his forces, facing the first defeat of their North American visit. The Britons defeated Harvard-Yale, Princeton-Cornell and then the Hamilton Olympic Club.

Defeat faced the British team all the way in the relay until the last lap, when Brown passed West End's Abbot Conway, winner of the 880-yard event an hour earlier. He caught the Toronto runner on the last turn and raced home six yards in front.

Except for that desperate sprint, which brought the crowd of 3,000 up yelling for Brown, the meet's hero was slender Larry O'Connor, who set a new Canadian record of 14.4 in winning the 120-yard high hurdles and then drove him in 24.2 to clip one-tenth of a second from the Canadian mark for the 220-yard low hurdles.

Nanaimo Team Defaults Game

This was the word received today by Pat Mulcahy, secretary of the Victoria and District League, in a telegram from officials of the up-island team.

Cardinals Win Softball Game

Jack Taylor's Nine Takes Women's League Fixture at Sidney

Scoring their fourth successive victory, Jack Taylor's Cardinals took the Saanich ex-High nine into camp 12 to 4 in a Women's Softball League match played at Sidney yesterday evening. The victory placed the Cards at the head of the standing.

Eight innings went by before the Saanich girls were able to cross second base but they finally crashed through four runs in the last frame. Playing well behind the hurling of Isa Milliken, the Cardinals played smooth ball throughout.

Score by innings:

Cardinals—102321030—12

Ex-High—00000000—4

Batteries—Milliken and Hanan; Hoare, Heal and Jones.

Palais de Danse evened their score in the play-off series with the Esquimalt Millionaires yesterday evening at Victoria West Park when they breezed through with a 17 to 12 victory in the second of the best of three. Leading up until the fifth frame, the Millionaires went down before a barrage of ten runs.

Score by innings:

Millionaires—074001301—12

DROP SEEN IN U.S. GOLD HOLDINGS

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States treasury reported today the first decline in its huge gold holdings since the gold sterilization programme was inaugurated last December.

Gold stocks declined $41,777,543 on Tuesday to $12,402,226,392, the treasury said. The decline presumably was due to operations under one or both of the treasury's new monetary agreements with China and Brazil.

Under both those accords, the treasury agreed to sell the gold for use in current stabilizing operations. The Chinese understanding provides for treasury acquisition of China's silver in amounts approximating sales of gold in China.

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—Found guilty on charges of forgery in connection with cashing cheques of $37.70 each with three Grand Forks merchants, Ralph Blackwood, 25, known at various points as Russell, Rogers and Dunwoody, was sentenced Wednesday to 25 months in the New Westminster penitentiary by Judge W. C. Kelley.

UNIT OF GUILD PAYS NO DUES

Seattle P.-I. Employers Score Leadership of Association in U.S.

SEATTLE (AP)—Forty editorial employees of The Seattle Post-Intelligencer, all members of the American Newspaper Guild, announced today they had refused to pay dues and assessments to the guild because of its present policies.

The employees said in a petition they did not "subscribe to 'taxation without representation,' and most emphatically will not contribute dues and assessments to carry on a programme in the shaping of which they have been denied a voice and of which they most heartily disapprove."

The petition was circulated by a committee consisting of Fred Niendorf, financial writer and committee chairman; Lester M. Hunt, political writer; Paul Stoffel, news editor, and Clarence Rote, photographer.

Thirty-four other editorial workers signed the petition, which was sent to the guild's international executive board and to President Heywood Brown.

"In The Guild Reporter (guild news organ) of July 15, the Seattle chapter, American Newspaper Guild, is listed as one which opposed a referendum of the action of the St. Louis convention," the petition said.

"The guild's national convention voted to bolt the American Federation of Labor and join the Committee for Industrial Organization."

"The Seattle chapter did not oppose such a referendum. The Seattle chapter never had a chance to vote on the question of a referendum.

"If the national guild leadership has the courage and honesty to face a real test of guild sentiment in Seattle it will order a mail referendum. It will confine this referendum strictly to bona fide editorial department members, to which the guild was limited at the time of the St. Louis convention."

"To do less than this would be tantamount to an admission that the guild leadership is fearful of the result," it said.

Story of Slaying Is Not Believed

SAN RAFAEL, Calif.—An itinerant found wandering aimlessly and homeless at nearby Ignacio and held as a possible Mattson kidnapping suspect unraveled Wednesday—a weird story of crime which Sheriff Walter Sellmer believed entirely imaginative.

The man, Joseph Ganda, 29, told the sheriff he had thrown a child into a well at Tacoma three months ago "because the spirits ordered him to." He then declared the well was in the San Francisco Presidio, and led Sellmer to a Presidio manhole he described as the scene of the crime.

Federal agents questioned Ganda and dispatched his fingerprints to Tacoma and Washington for checking.

NO BACK SLAPPERS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—Women's clubs were warned today against choosing leaders just because they know how to slap backs, mix well and wear Parisian clothes.

"We should select the women who can best advance our interests," Miss Lena M. Phillips, lawyer and associate editor of The Pictorial Review, told the convention of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Esquimalt Lagoon Is Happy Summer Spot

Just about half an hour's run from Victoria there is a lovely stretch of sand beach known as the Esquimalt Lagoon. It is the mecca for many during the nice, sunny hours of summer. Picnic parties for a day, or vacation parties by the week or month, passing motorists by the hour make of the beach and lagoon a summer spot of much importance—all within easy distance of Victoria.

There is no summer hotel at the Lagoon, but there are many summer cottages available by the day, week or month. Mr. T. Milburn has a number of little cottages built in the shade of big trees in what he has named Milburn's Picnic Grounds. The cottages are new and clean, from two to five rooms, all partly furnished. There is a tiny store and a good road from the highway down to the grounds.

PERFECT VIEW

Esquimalt Lagoon has a magnificent view. Across the water to the left stretches a panorama of Victoria, with Mt. Baker rising on clear days, just behind the city. To the right again, out across the sea, are the mighty Olympics, serrated peak on peak, and in the distance the lone sentinel peak of Mt. Ranier stands clearly etched against the sky. Great ships pass and repass the Lagoon—ocean liners and coastwise vessels.

The beach is a clean type of pebbly sand. The water is perfect for swimming and bathing. For an outdoor holiday by the sea and at a minimum expense, nothing could be better than Esquimalt Lagoon. It is a perfect spot for a family holiday, for it is close enough to Victoria to make it easy to run in and out to business. And for a day's picnic, it is ideal. Put Esquimalt Lagoon on your list of holiday places to see this year.

Wages Yardstick For Debt Figures

NEW YORK—It would take the working population of the United States 11 months, laboring six days a week, to pay off the public debt with its wages, according to a research report of the Twentieth Century Fund.

The committee that prepared the report—including Donald Richberg, former adviser to President Roosevelt, and James W. Angell, Columbia University economics professor—agreed the present public debt of approximately $34,000,000,000 was not a cause for alarm.

The British population, it pointed out, would have to work two and a quarter years to pay off its public debt. It would take the French population even longer to wipe out France's obligations.

Not Considering Trade Post Now

Creation of the ninth position in the Provincial Cabinet—that of Minister of Trades and Commerce—will not be considered until the fall, after the approaching session, Premier Pattullo announced this morning.

While there has been considerable speculation as to who will receive the post, the Premier said there had been no decision in the matter and little thought was being given to the time being.

North Dakota Publisher Here

N. D. Black Has Papers in Most and Least Drought-stricken Areas

Publisher of newspapers in two areas of North Dakota, which are among those least and most affected by the droughts of recent years, Norman D. Black was a visitor at the Empress Hotel overnight.

Mr. Black, accompanied by Mrs. Black and their two children, Norman Jr. and Peggy, came here from Alaska yesterday and were to leave this afternoon for Banff, Lake Louise and Winnipeg on their way to their summer home on the Detroit Lakes.

Mr. Black has been publisher of The Fargo Forum, largest paper in the state, for more than 20 years. Fargo, in the Red River Valley, has never suffered from drought, and is a mixed farming centre noted especially for packing plants.

He is also the owner of a small paper at Minot, in the western part of the state, and well into the dust bowl area. There has been no crop at Minot for seven years, although this year the farmers are hopeful.

North Dakota as a whole is expecting its best crop for many years, Mr. Black said this morning. The present season is the critical one which decides the extent of the growth, but the indications are good.

Mr. Black says he was "born in the newspaper business." His son is following in his footsteps, and is national advertising head for The Forum.

RADIO AND PRESS

The publisher believes the radio and the newspapers have got to work together, and has put his belief into effect by acquiring the largest station in his state, a member of the NBC chain. He finds the fairly loose union between the paper and the station works out very well in practice.

Mr. Black is a believer in radio altogether. There are four long waves and one short wave sets in The Forum's offices. The short wave set sits on the city editor's desk, and is tuned to the local police wave band. The others serve for following important sports events and speeches, and for recreational purposes.

Mr. and Mrs. Black are impressed with the beauty of Victoria. "You certainly have a lovely place here," said Mr. Black.

Recommend Removal Of Beach Buildings

A recommendation that the City Council look into the validity of buildings on public property along the waterfront of Victoria has been made by the city building and sanitary inspectors.

The inspectors reported in a letter this morning they had received a complaint respecting a building on the foreshore at the foot of St. Charles Street. They inspected it and found that some time ago two buildings had been erected there, one of which is now being used as a public convenience and is a nuisance, and the other is used as a boathouse.

"As these buildings are on public property, we recommend that the city take steps to have them pulled down and removed," the letter reads. "While we are reporting on this matter, we beg to advise the council that there are many instances of encroachments on street-ends on the waterfront in various parts of the city and would suggest the council ask the engineering department for a report on any encroachments and also advice from the city solicitor on the subject."

No. 12 Field Ambulance, R.C.A.M.C., will parade at the Armories, Bay Street, tonight, at 10.30 hours. Dress, multi. Stricker exercises in connection with the forthcoming military tattoo will be carried out.

The Bellingham Chamber of Commerce notified the Junior Chamber of Commerce here this morning that due to the lack of direct ferry connection, the Puget Sound city could not enter a float in the August 4 and 7 jubilee parades, but would advertise Victoria's celebrations and support any excursion here on the parade days.

Two Movements Are Described

F. T. C. Wickett Makes Address on "Sonata and Symphony"

A representation of the highest development of "pure" or "abstract" music was the way in which F. T. C. Wickett described the sonata and the symphony in an interesting lecture given during the music appreciation assembly at the Summer School of Education this morning.

In general design, he said, the concerto, and the classic duo, trio and quartette were all identical with the sonata and the symphony. The sonata he characterized as a composition for a single instrument. The symphony was essentially for a large aggregation of instruments, the "form" of both being alike.

THE SONATA

The sonata consisted of three or four movements. The first was considered to be the most important in design and was said to be in sonata-form or first-movement form. It was sometimes referred to as Haydn-form by reason of the fact that although the form was foreshadowed by D. Scarlatti, Corelli and especially by C. P. E. Bach, Haydn was the first great composer to mould it into clearly defined and well proportioned shape.

The plan of the first movement began with exposition which consisted of the enunciation of the two subjects or themes upon which the piece was constructed. The second subject was contrasted both in character and key with the first.

The "development" in which parts of the themes were variously treated and developed led to the "recapitulation" or repetition of the first and second subjects, both being in the tonic key. A coda, a sort of peroration, concluded the movement.

The second movement, designated the slow movement, was varied in form but was usually flowing in character. The third movement was either minuet and trio or scherzo. The speaker described the finale as being usually either a rondo or an allegro in modified sonata form. Mozart and Beethoven were considered to have brought the sonata and the symphony in all essentials to perfection. Later composers had written some splendid examples of that style of composition.

CITY ENTERS

Float of Flowers Being Built; Firemen Also Make Entry

Among entries recently received for Victoria's anniversary parades is that of the City of Victoria, which will be a float entirely decorated with flowers.

Work on the city's float will be supervised by W. H. Warren, superintendent of parks.

Several members of the Victoria fire department are working on a design for a float which will also be decorated entirely with flowers.

The decorated automobile section of the parades is proving popular. Three entries, among the first, were from women—Mrs. J. O. Cameron, Miss G. M. Townsend and Mrs. J. C. Newbury.

The naval authorities have signified their intention of participating in the parades with a contingent of 200 officers and men.

Twain Descendant
After Fish Here

The fishing on Vancouver Island is very much to the liking of James Clemens, a visitor here from Massachusetts, who is a descendant of Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) and a fisherman of note.

Mr. Clemens returned to the Empress Hotel yesterday with Mrs. Clemens and W. J. Bodwell, another fisherman from Maine, after spending a week at Campbell Lake.

They were down just for a breather, Mr. Clemens said this morning, and they plan to return to the up-island lake shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. Clemens spent a month here last fall.

MANY ATTEND FINE CONCERT

Five Hundred Students Present at Summer School Programme

Approximately 500 summer school students now attending sessions at the Victoria High School were present at the concert given yesterday evening in the school auditorium.

Arranged by F. T. C. Wickett, who is in charge of the music appreciation course at the school, and sponsored by the school, the programme was enthusiastically received by the large audience. Only the length of the programme prevented the artists from responding to insistent demands for more.

Those taking part in the programme were: Mary Bucklin Hammond, cellist; Una Calvert, pianist; the Elizabethan Singers, Phyllis Deaville, soprano; Dorothy Parsons, soprano; Dudley Wickett, tenor, and Jack Townsend, bass, with Maquinn Daniels and John Ringwood as skilled accompanists.

FINE PROGRAMME

Variety, finesse and richness characterized the programme throughout. Mary Bucklin Hammond and Una Calvert opened the concert with Eccles's four-movement Sonata in G Minor, and later these two artists also played Sammartini's three-movement Sonata in G Major for cello and piano.

The two were heard later in the programme as soloists. Miss Hammond played Faure's "Elegie" and "Papillons."

Persistent study was well rewarded in the offerings of the Elizabethan Singers. They sang groups of old English songs, sea chanteys, ballads and operatic selections. The arrangements they rendered included Morley's "April Is My Mistress' Face," Vaughan Williams's "Sweet Day," Sweeling's arrangement of "The Willow Tree," Rowley's "Rathlin Head," "The Blue Peter," "Linden Lea," "Ships of Arcady," "Shenandoah," "Spinning Quartette" from "Martha" and "Billy Boy."

Phyllis Deaville gave a sparkling interpretation of "Villanelle" and "Romance" from "Faust." Dorothy Parsons, a very accomplished musician and finished artist, sang Brahms's "May Night" and the difficult "Whither." Dudley Wickett's pleasing tenor was effective in Rosa's "To Be Near Thee" and the dramatic and difficult "Eric King."

The section devoted to forest products will feature the main commercial woods, namely: Douglas fir, cedar, spruce and hemlock, and such other products as rayon silk and pulp for the manufacture of kraft and newsprint. Agriculture will be represented by a comprehensive display of fresh and bottled fruits, commercial and sport fishing by life-like casts of salmon, steelhead and rainbow trout. The mineral display will feature the precious and commercial ores.

Handsome game trophies will be used in the decorative scheme, and a unique frieze of small "bear" totems and ceremonial masks.

Two tall totem poles, emblematic of the thunderbird and whale, will be striking features. Illuminated transparencies, Indian work, and profuse lighting will combine to make the whole display very attractive.

Budge and Company Figured Near Cinch to Win Davis Cup From British

WIMBLEDON—The gap left in British tennis when Fred Perry turned professional was an aching void today as Britain considered her chances against the United States in Saturday's Davis Cup challenge round.

H. W. "Bunny" Austin was in the number one singles berth, opposite Don Budge, red-headed Californian, who reached new heights in his victory over Baron Gottfried von Cramm in the inter-zone finals Tuesday. Charles Hare is the other singles player, with C. R. D. Tuckey and H. D. Wilde teaming up in the doubles.

While Austin has a reputation for coming through in cup matches, it is felt the Cambridge stylist will be out of his class against the bounding Budge. However, he is figured to snatch one singles victory over the United States second string—either "Bitsy" Grant or Frank Parker.

With the possibility of the match hinging on the doubles clash, the British team suffered another blow when George Patrick Hughes, veteran with Tuckey of many cup encounters, was forced to stand down through illness. Wilde was named belatedly as his substitute.

Walter L. Pate, captain of the United States team, admitted that Grant, heart-broken over his two defeats in the match with Germany, had asked to be dropped from the team for the challenge round in Parker's favor, but said no definite decision on that point had been reached.

"Bitsy" is naturally disappointed over his showing against Germany, the United States captain said, "and is trying to play them against each other and probably will make a choice then."

E. A. McDonald Who Starred With Australia Victim in Car Crash

BOLTON, Lancashire, Eng. (CP)—E. A. McDonald, Australian fast bowler, who made cricket history in the test matches with England after the war, was killed in a motor accident here today.

McDonald's car had been in collision with another machine and he was standing in the roadway, giving particulars of the accident to a policeman, when a third car ran into him. The driver was charged with manslaughter.

McDonald, who was 45, jumped to fame in 1919 when he took eight wickets for 42 runs while playing for Victoria against New South Wales. During the 1921 season he took a total of 150 wickets for an average of less than 16 runs apiece and headed Australia's test averages with 27 wickets.

Since 1921 he had been a professional with Lancashire League clubs.

Disappearance Again Studied

Mystery of Judge Crater, Vanished in 1930, Is Revived in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Revival of an almost legendary mystery—the disappearance seven years ago of Justice Joseph Force Crater of the New York Supreme Court, brought from District Attorney William C. Dodge today an announcement he would be "glad to make a thorough investigation" of charges the judge was slain by political enemies.

Dodge said he was willing to go over the entire case with the missing jurist's wife, Mrs. Stella M. Crater, quoted Wednesday in a newspaper interview as charging her husband possibly was murdered.

Fox Squirrels and Silver-tails

With a length of about two feet (half of it tail), the fox squirrel ranks as the largest member of its family on this continent. It also seems to be the best fighter, and is not in much danger from hawks as other squirrels.

A Fox Squirrel

The red squirrel may be "a better fighter for its size," but it is only half as large, and is not nearly so strong.

Red squirrels range through nearly all of Canada, and are found in most northerly and eastern parts of the United States. Fox squirrels live more toward the south. Their homeland is chiefly between the Gulf of Mexico and the Great Lakes. They are found as far east as Rhode Island, as far west as Nebraska.

Walnuts, chestnuts, butternuts, acorns and hickory nuts are food for the fox squirrels. They also eat beetles and grub-worms when they can get nothing better. Sometimes they go into cornfields and eat growing corn.

When storing nuts for the winter, fox squirrels place them in little "pockets" they dig in the ground, or under a small heap of leaves. The usual custom is to place only one nut in each "pocket."

Fox squirrels have been observed "licking" the nuts before placing them in pockets. It is supposed that this gives the nuts a special smell, and helps the squirrels to locate them when they want to dig them up.

For their nests in hollow trees, fox squirrels find hollows with "doorways" only about three inches wide. This guards their homes from larger-sized enemies, such as the owl.

A relative of the fox squirrel is known as the "canyon fox squirrel," also as the "Arizona grey squirrel." It likes to be near running water, and makes its home in deep river valleys or canyons.

Canyon fox squirrels spend most of their time in and about pine trees. They eat the seeds of pine cones, also acorns, walnuts and berries.

Another squirrel which likes pine trees is known as "silver-tail" or as "the tassel-eared squirrel." The name of silver-tail comes from the white coloring of the lower side of the tail. As the animal runs or bounds along the ground, it raises its tail, making the white hair easy for a person to see.

In writing about the food habits of silver-tail, Dr. E. A. Mears reported:

"I have never seen this squirrel engaged in hoarding up food. The stores saved by the Mexican woodpecker are taken by it whenever found. The woodpecker and the squirrel have quarrels over the stealing of nuts which the woodpecker has stored in the pine bark. They scold each other soundly."

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My mother is a middle-aged woman, a widow. She has a house that rents for $40 a month and $5,000 in the bank. She complains of ill-health, but we think it is just a mental condition. She has two children, myself and a brother, both married. My husband and I both work. We have tried every way we know to make Mother happy and comfortable without avail. She has been in rooms, has boarded with strangers, has lived with an old lady, has lived with us and we have lived with her, and she is not contented with any of the arrangements. We are at wits' end to know what to do. How much money should my brother and I give her? What is my duty to her as a thankful, appreciative daughter, and yet as a loyal, helpful wife, for my mother objects strenuously to my husband and I pooling our earnings in a common fund? How can I balance home and husband, mother and career without losing my mind?

Answer—It seems to me that when you have a warped mentality to deal with the only thing to do is to hold fast to your own sanity and do what you know to be the sensible thing. Evidently your mother is one of the querulous, ill-balanced, neurotic, selfish women whom nobody on earth can please and who would not be satisfied and contented under any conditions, so it is folly for you to wear yourself out in the vain attempt to make her happy.

She doesn't want to be happy. She wants something to complain about, some grievance to whine over, and she gets a sadistic pleasure in making other people as wretched as she thinks she is herself. Nearly every family has that kind of a killjoy in it, and it is a tribute to human nature that they are borne with so patiently instead of being throttled, as they deserve to be.

Your mother's grievance now is that her children married and her home is broken up, and so she is trying to break up your home and dissatisfy you with your husband and make you feel that he isn't dealing fairly with you on the money question—though the fifty-fifty joint checking arrangement is generally considered to be an equitable way of settling the money problem between husbands and wives.

Under such circumstances, when your mother is always fault-finding and pecking at your husband and your husband naturally resents it, it will be disastrous for you to have her as a member of your household. So the best arrangement you can make is just to make her a monthly allowance and let her live where she pleases. If she has $40 a month from rent, it would require only a modest sum from you and your brother to make her comfortable. She will be far better off among strangers than she will be with either of you children because she will have to control herself with others.

Probably all of her ill-health is imaginary. Why don't you have a competent physician make a thorough examination of her, so that you will know whether you have cause to be really anxious about her or are worrying unnecessarily? But you have my sincere sympathy. A woman who has to act as a buffer between her husband and her mother gets some mighty hard knocks.

DEAR MISS DIX—Does a girl always have to worry over whether or not her sweetheart is tired of her? Must she always have that fear in mind? And is there no insurance whatever against it? Can't we do anything else except take it when it happens? People get married every day. They must not have grown tired of each other, even though some of them went together for years and years. This matter really has me worried.

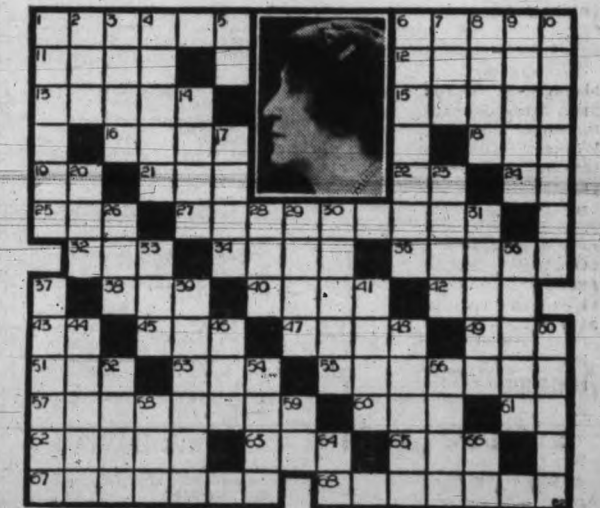

Answer—Well, it may. It is every woman's headache because men are fickle, "with one foot on land and one on sea, to one thing constant never," as the old song says.

Why men change, why romance wears out so quickly with them, why the girls they were so crazy about one day they can't see the next, nobody knows. They don't even know themselves. All they know is that they have just lost their taste for them. And that's that.

Of course, it doesn't always happen. There are many cases in which a man loves a woman more and more as the years go by, but it is all luck whether a girl gets one of these faithful souls, or one who is as changeable as the moon. And there is nothing she can do about it.

Drops Idea Of Rafting at Sea

CRESCENT CITY, Calif.—After having tried to go to sea on a long raft equipped with a sail, Perry Staughton was back in Crescent City today. Staughton left Sunday on his loosely-knit craft, bound for San Diego. Heavy winds and adverse currents buffeted him back and forth several miles off shore, between Point St. George and Trinidad Head.

Passing fishing boats supplied him with provisions, but he refused offers of rescue by the deep sea craft. He was at sea for 40 hours.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from MacFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores or any drugist, a package of Hemoroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemoroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use, may be had at such a reasonable cost.

Notice to Mariners

Algoma Pike Obliging Fish

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—The Algoma pike is an obliging fish, besides being a powerful one. A holiday visitor to St. Joseph Island hooked one of the biggest ones at Pine Island ferry dock, but it got away, taking the line with it.

Losing the fish didn't worry the boy, but he was disconsolate about losing the hook, because it was part of his dad's expensive fishing gear.

But the pike, says Ira Holmes, the ferryman at Richard's Landing, understood the youngster's woe. It reared up in the water 75 feet from the dock, shook its mighty head vigorously, and that hook just naturally flew out and landed on the dock at the boy's feet.

Waterways Report Soon Presented

EDMONTON—Report of the International Joint Commission on the proposed Montreal-New York waterway which, if erected, would have an important bearing on freight shipments between the Canadian prairies and the eastern United States and the West Indies will probably be presented to the Ottawa and Washington governments in October. It was stated in Edmonton Wednesday by Hon. Charles Stewart, former Alberta Premier and member of Liberal federal cabinet, and now chairman of the Canadian section of the international commission.

LOSS TO PORT CONSIDERABLE

Trades and Labor Council Hears of Troubles on Local Waterfront

The tremendous loss to the port of Victoria because of troubles among waterfront factions was pointed out by J. W. Irwin, who reported as a delegate from the International Longshoremen's Association to last night's meeting of the Victoria Trades and Labor Council. William Youhill, president, occupied the chair.

Because of these labor disputes on the waterfront, Mr. Irwin reported, members of the I.L.A. in Victoria had not been working since February 4.

The loss to members, he said, had been many thousands of dollars. He briefly outlined the activities in seeking a settlement to the differences and paid tribute to Mayor McGavin for the interest he had taken in trying to solve the difficulty.

FEW IN TRADES

Charles Chivers reported to the council that apprentices were paid more in Vancouver than in Victoria and that at the present time a very few were being hired in this city. Mr. Chivers is chairman of a committee investigating this matter for the council.

Mr. Chivers said it had been suggested to him the reason so few young men were being trained in the trades today was probably due to the high wages, that, in some cases, were paid them as beginners, discouraging employers from hiring them.

This matter will be fully discussed, Mr. Chivers reported, in the near future, with Hamilton Crisford, provincial inspector of the apprenticeship branch of the British Columbia Government, who will come here from Vancouver for the meeting. All unions interested will be given an opportunity to have delegates present, Mr. Chivers told the meeting.

DEMOCRACY IS NOW ON TRIAL

H.M.S. Exeter's Commander Explains at San Diego Why Britain Rearming

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—World conditions today are a challenge to democracy and that is one of the fundamental reasons why Great Britain is rearming, Commodore H. H. Harwood, commander of the British West Indies station, said here yesterday at a civic luncheon in his honor.

"England's rearmament programme is nothing more than an attempt to help in the maintenance of peace," he declared. "We have been forced to increase our armaments for democracy is on trial. It is a sad state of affairs in which we find the world today."

"England repeatedly has endeavored to secure a limitation on arms through a disarmament programme of the major powers, through the League of Nations and by collective security. All have failed. We are now concentrating our efforts in trying to localize the situation in Spain."

Commodore Harwood expressed the hope that negotiations for reciprocal trade agreements between the United States and Great Britain will succeed.

"These treaties will lead to co-operation and development of trade to the mutual advantage and prosperity of both countries," he said.

The British flagship Exeter, aboard which Commodore Harwood arrived, will leave today for Victoria, B.C.

MONTREAL — H.M.S. Scarborough, attached to the Bermuda station of the Royal Navy left yesterday for Hudson Bay under Capt. F. R. Baxter's command.

First British naval craft to sail for the Arctic in modern times, the Scarborough will follow a route similar to the one now being covered by Hudson's Bay Company trading ship Nasopie, and likely will visit Churchill, northern Manitoba seaport, en route.

After spending a month and a half in northern seas, the sloop will return to her Bermuda base.

Seek Agreement With Ss. Lines

Pan-American Airways Negotiate Ticket and Baggage Pact With I.M.M.

NEW YORK — Pan-American Airways, with giant commercial flying boats linking the Americas and spanning the Pacific, and survey planes plotting routes to Europe, today sought to forge the last link in a chain of working agreements with steamship lines.

Pan-American is negotiating for a pact with International Mercantile Marine Company, controller of United States (Steamship) Lines, under which I.M.M. agencies not only would sell Pan-American tickets abroad, but also, Wall Street circles believe, transport bulky baggage for Pan-American travelers.

Such a plan, if finally worked out, would require approval of the Federal Maritime Commission before it could be put into operation.

Pan-American, in a joint project with Imperial Airways, currently is flying survey ships over a proposed summer travel North Atlantic route from New York city (Port Washington) to England, by way of Newfoundland and Ireland.

LANDING GEAR WAS WRECKED

Damaged Plane to Be Dismantled and Shipped From Fernie to Coast

FERNIE, B.C. (CP) — H. L. Hartridge, Vancouver pilot, said today the plane he wrecked eight miles west of here, Wednesday afternoon, would be partly dismantled and brought here for shipment back to the coast.

Hartridge, making a leisurely flight from Vancouver to Lethbridge, Alta., landed at the Fernie airport after experiencing considerable difficulty in a high sound wind and downdrafts.

On his take-off later, Hartridge said, the plane could not gain sufficient height to proceed eastward, and rather than risk attempting to fly low through a narrow Elk River valley he made a forced landing in a hay field. Rough ground broke the plane's landing gear as it struck. Hartridge was not injured.

Airport Plans At Vancouver

VANCOUVER—The city council airport committee yesterday gave Airport Manager William Templeton authority to start a $50,000 improvement programme as soon as the Dominion Government sends word it has approved a grant to cover the cost.

The city is seeking the grant as an advance on a total grant of $90,000, to be expended on airport improvement between now and the end of the fiscal year, March 31 next.

The grant is being made in connection with the establishment of Vancouver as the western terminus of the trans-Canada air route.

Ferry Rates Not "Forced"

OLYMPIA, Wash.—Further adjustment in Puget Sound ferry rates will not be "forced" pending hearings which will be held next month, Washington State Public Service Director Fred J. Schaaf said Tuesday.

Complaints had been made to the department ferry rates in some instances were in excess of the 10 per cent increase allowed by Governor Martin's strike settlement accepted some time ago.

Mist Defeated By Aphrodite

OLCOT, N.Y.—The Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Aphrodite took back home yesterday the international Gorge Cup for six-metre sloops by defeating the American defender Mist, for the second time in two days.

The Aphrodite's owner-skipper, Robert Barr, of Toronto, outmanoeuvred the American crew and puffed across the finish line 72 seconds ahead.

Barr and his four-man crew sailed the 18 miles in four hours 17 minutes 55 seconds despite a breeze that at its height was but seven miles an hour.

C.I.O. Support For Seamen

NEW YORK — Joseph Curran, chairman of the National Maritime Union's constitutional convention, told convention delegates last night that the union has been given the support of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Policies of the International Seamen's Union, American Federation of Labor affiliate, are "bankrupt," he said. He charged the union with strike-breaking against the N.M.U. in 1936.

He said the convention would discuss plans for one national agreement to cover all unlicensed seamen, and advocated N.M.U. support of longshoremen's negotiations for contracts by September.

GERMAN DIVER NOT DETAINED

Signal Charge Dropped By Destroyer, Says Admiralty, Explaining Incident

LONDON—The Admiralty announced yesterday that a practice charge dropped by the destroyer Wolfhound to signal a British submarine off Portland, while a German U-boat passed nearby, led to erroneous reports that the German boat had been halted.

The (British) Press Association had quoted informed sources that the German submarine U-27 had been detected off Britain's naval base at Portland on Monday night, that the Wolfhound ordered her to the surface, questioned the commander and then permitted her to proceed.

The Admiralty denied this and gave this version of the incident: The Wolfhound was engaged in exercises off the naval base. She dropped a practice charge to signal a British submarine to come to the surface. The German U-27 at the time was proceeding on a passage past Portland. She continued without incident or in any way becoming involved with the British manoeuvres.

The U-27 is one of a group of submarines built under Germany's 1936 naval programme. She has a displacement of 500 tons, is 206 feet long and carries a crew of 35.

The Press Association withdrew its version in view of the Admiralty announcement.

Rt. Hon. Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, discussed the incident in the Commons this afternoon:

"The German submarine was on the surface, outside territorial waters, in the vicinity of Portland, where she had a perfect right to be," he said. "The depth charge which was fired in connection with the British submarine had no connection whatever with the German submarine."
